Reds Unite Fighting Forces

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(P)—Russia consolidated her fighting forces into a single "Peoples' Commissariat" Monday and dropped the word "defense" from its title.

Generalissimo Stalin, the Moscow radio announced, becomes head of the new "People's Commissariat of the Armed Forces of the U. S. S. R."

Stalin, the broadcast said, "by decree of the presidium of the supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R. has been appointed people's commissar of the armed forces and supreme commander-in-chief of the armed forces of the U. S. S. R."

The decree abolished the people's commissariat for the navy, the announcement said, and "transformed" the people's commissariat for defense into the new commissariat.

Stalin was appointed people's commissar of defense on July 19, 1941, a month after Germany declared war on Russia and at a time when the Nazis had captured Smolensk and had forced their way to within 200 miles of Moscow.

The people's commissariat for defense of the U. S. S. R., by decree of the supreme presidium of the U. S. S. R., has been transformed into the people's commissariat of the armed forces of the U. S. S. R., the broadcast said.

"All the armed forces of the U. S. S. R.—the land armies, air forces and naval forces—are united in this people's commissariat."

"The presidium of the supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R. has issued a decree abolishing the people's commissariat for the navy of the U. S. S. R. This is in accordance with the decree on formation of the people's commissariat of the armed forces."

Adm. N. G. Kuznetsov has been commissar of the Russian navy.

Three teen-aged youths held in connection with numerous recent burglaries over north Fulton county also have admitted they precipitated the wave of vandalism which swept through palatial northside homes last summer, Fulton county police have announced.

The youths were said to have admitted 22 burglaries extending from the north city limits of Atlanta through the Loring Heights section following their arrests Saturday.

Capt. W. L. Duncan, of the Fulton police detective bureau, assisted by County Detectives Mike Johnson, I. M. Eason and H. B. Carroll, made the arrests.

Two of the boys—listed as Hansell C. Barber, 16, of a Gaskill street address, and Charles Frederick Smith, 16, of Hampton street, accompanied county officers last night on a tour of the northside homes to point out the ones they had entered. The third, only 14 years of age, is being detained in the juvenile home.

Questioned at Fulton Tower, county detectives said the two older boys told of entering the homes, the northside homes and tossing eggs from the refrigerators at chandeliers and walls. Several of the homes entered last summer had been redecorated only a few days before the acts of vandalism were committed.

Officers quoted the youths as saying they ceased the vandalism because "it got too hot." The wave drew attention from both Atlanta newspapers and also invited sharp criticism from both the Fulton and DeKalb county grand juries.

In the recent burglaries, detectives related, the youths told of visiting ice boxes before rummaging for money, jewels or other valuables. However, they did not smear food on the walls of houses as was done in the vandalism raids last summer.

3 Admit Roles As Last Year's 'Teen Vandals'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(P)—The Senate Appropriations Committee Monday slashed supply funds needed to operate the Office of Price Administration and the Civilian Production Administration for the next four months.

By identical 11-to-9 votes the committee cut in two urgent deficiency appropriations approved by the house for OPA of $1,854,000 and for CPA (successor to the War Production Administration) of $1,500,000.

Both reductions were in an urgent deficiency appropriation measure which had been speeded through the house so agencies involved could complete plans for operation during the balance of this fiscal year.

50,000 Look On As $400,000 Blaze Sweeps 1,000,000 Tires Up In Smoke

Products Company, near the N. C. & St. L. railroad tracks just below the Magnolia street viaduct. This photo was made from the roof of the Constitution building some five blocks from the fire. Thousands of spectators saw it from the Magnolia and the Spring street viaducts.

6 Firemen Hurt While Battling Downtown Fire

Fire in the plant of the Dixie Rubber Products Company, at 145 Hulsey street, N. W., late yesterday caused damage estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000 and drew a crowd of 50,000 Atlantans to the scene. Six firemen were injured.

The scene of the fire was just north of the Magnolia street viaduct. It was also easily visible from the Spring street viaduct. Its location made it one of the most spectacular fires ever seen here. It threw up a pillar of smoke that caused wonderment as far north as Buford.

Losses from the fire are split between the rubber company and the Continental Gin Company, of 267 Foundry street, N. W., owner of the four-story brick warehouse where the fire took place. The rubber company, which carried an enormous stock of old automobile tires, estimated its loss at between $100,000 and $150,000. Officers of the gin company said that the loss from destruction of the warehouse will amount to around $250,000.

FIVE-ALARM FIRE

It was a five-alarm fire. The fire department responded with all available equipment, including 10 trucks, and it was three hours before firemen could get the flames under control. The dense smoke pushing from a huge mass of burning rubber made it difficult for firemen to get close enough for effective work.

On one side of the warehouse there is a large concrete loading platform where the rubber company stacked nearly 1,000,000 old tires. The fire started here and then spread to the first floor of the warehouse where were stored 15 carloads of baled scrap rubber and 35,000 manufactured retinings.

As a result of a series of explosions among barrels of rubber cement, the flames spread into the five minutes before anyone turned in an alarm. During that interval, thousands of people began to gather on the Spring street viaduct.

The fire completely gutted the warehouse and caused both ends to cave in. Late in the night the sides of the building were sagging so much that police and firemen expected them to fall. One of the sides immediately adjoins the main line track of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad. Because of the danger involved here, trainmen at the Union Station held up the passage of all trains for several hours last night. They included four express trains, two northbound and two southbound.

The Continental Gin Company, which owned the ruined warehouse, had two other buildings near by. These buildings, though endangered, were undamaged by the fire.

BUILDING BIG LOSS

The Dixie Rubber Products Company leased part of the first floor of the warehouse for reclamation and storage purposes. In addition, the Continental Gin Company operated repair shops in the warehouse and had considerable equipment stored on the upper floors. J. M. Smith, superintendent of Continentals' repair shop, estimated his company's loss at in excess of $200,000 and another Continental officer said the loss would not exceed $250,000, with the major loss in the destruction of the building itself.

Herbert Zwerner, 21, of 1100 Piedmont avenue, N. E., is the owner of the Dixie Rubber Products Company. Tied in with the same concern is the Globe Supply Company and the Manhattan Coil Company. Herbert Zwerner also is associated with his father, Jack Zwerner, president of the Holfast Rubber Company.

Herbert Zwerner said that this supply of old rubber was one of the largest in the United States and was valued at from $100,000 to $150,000. The baled scrap rubber in storage, he said, was held here because of strikes now pending.

Pope Seeks 'New Order' For World

ROME, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Pope Pius XII Monday called for a "new order" in the world, pointing to the Vatican as "an oasis of peace" and saying that he had never permitted himself to approve Germany's war against Russia in 1941.

The Pope spoke before an unprecedented collective papal audience for the College of Cardinals and the Vatican diplomatic corps, making his remarks in response to a greeting by Portuguese Ambassador Antonio Pacheco, dean of the Vatican diplomats.

Earlier in the day, Francis Cardinal Spellman, of New York, had accepted titular possession of the Church of Saints John and Paul in an address scoring attacks on religious freedom in many parts of the world.

The Pope said the international character of the gathering at the papal audience was "most convincing testimony of the unanimous wish to collaborate in a great restoration of human society and establishment of a new order founded on truth, justice and love."

"DOUBLE UNIVERSALITY"

"This double universality of the sacred college and diplomatic corps gives a visible image of the true internationality of the church... which puts the characters and resources of each nation in proper perspective... respects their autonomy and their originality."

"During all this war, the most terrible ever loosed on humanity... in the very center of this country, dragged tragically into the whirlwind, was this Vatican City, this tiny, defenseless state, surrounded on all sides by fire, remaining territorially and juridically, but above all spiritually and morally, an oasis of peace."

"Your illustrious corps has known how to show the role of diplomacy in its highest conception... we have been constantly preoccupied with sparing humanity from this funeral conflict. For that reason particularly we have always kept ourselves from letting escape from our lips or our pen a single word or a single indication of approval or encouragement in favor of the war taken up against Russia in 1941."

"WORLD OF PROPAGANDA"

"The diplomatic world often finds itself in contact with the world of propaganda, but this propaganda should follow a holy law dedicated to truth and objectivity."

Spellman declared that it was the church's duty to stand against the "wave of militant atheism."

He said the church must "face a tidal wave of militant atheism, unbridled immorality, vile injustices and blinding hatreds and cruelty that in this atomic age of godless materialism threatens the death of civilization, threatens the end of man's world."

He branded as "empty theorizing" talk of "liberation of man" "if the fundamental freedom necessary for human happiness is denied."

"I refer to the freedom of religion," he said, adding that the anxiety the Pope has manifested toward portions of his flock "extends to many parts of the world, where man's right of religious freedom is violated with diabolical deceit and satanic fury."

Report Allen To Quit Post

It was rumored at the state capital late yesterday that Ivan Allen Jr. plans to resign as executive secretary to Gov. Arnall, because of private business obligations. He is an officer in the firm of Ivan Allen-Marshall Company here, of which his father is president.

The Allens are personal as well as political friends of the Governor.

Reports had it that P. T. McCutchen Jr., clerk of the house of representatives for the past four years, would be named to succeed Allen.

Gov. Arnall could not be reached for comment on these reports.

DON'T WORRY, NANCY ASTOR

Savannah Loves You For Washing Its Face

SAVANNAH, Feb. 25.—Lady Nancy Astor is contemplating coming to Savannah and apologizing in person to "his worship," Mayor Peter R. Nugent, because of her statement that "Savannah is like a beautiful woman with a dirty face," looks so ill-mannered.

In a letter to Bill Fielder, of the Savannah Morning News, who secured the statement from Lady Astor during a recent tour of the city, the famed British politician asked: "Please tell me what to do. Shall I motor down and apologize?"

While indicating a desire to go to considerable inconvenience to relieve the impression that she is ill-mannered or rude, Lady Astor emphasized that "if we can clean up that lovely town before the economic conference (world monetary conference, which convenes here March 3) they can go on cussing me."

Lady Astor wrote Fielder from Semans Hall Club, near Charleston, S. C., where she and Lord Astor are guests of Thomas W. Lamont, the New York banker.

It was while en route to the Lamont estate from Miami that Lord and Lady Astor's plane was grounded by bad weather at Savannah, resulting in her taxi tour of Georgia's mother city.

Fielder sent Lady Astor a copy of the interview, together with copies of editorials and items in other cities concerning her remarks about Savannah's untidy appearance.

Since then Lady Astor's remarks have caused a city-wide clean-up drive and while a few individuals have stated that Lady Astor has a lot of nerve to lambast Savannah, the great majority felt that she had done the city a service by starting the cleanliness campaign. Other southern cities took note of her remarks and confessed that in their communities a similar state of affairs prevailed. First was Atlanta, then Charleston, and now Augusta, is demanding a clean-up for fear that Lady Astor might pop in on them with their streets littered.

In reply to it all Lady Astor wrote: "Dear Mr. Fielder: Your letter and enclosures took my breath away. So much in so little time.

Jap Ex-Envoy Confirms 'Winds' Tip

TOKYO, Feb. 26, (Tuesday) (INS)—Katsuzo Okumura, first secretary of the Japanese embassy in Washington in 1941, has confirmed the existence of the "winds" message which was designed to warn Japanese embassies of impending war.

Okumura said Tuesday that all Jap embassies and legations were warned 13 days before the Pearl Harbor attack to listen to Radio Tokyo every night and be on the alert for the coded message given in weather forecasts.

The advice to listen to Radio Tokyo for the war warning was given in a coded commercial radiogram.

Okumura, attempting to recall the exact wording of the war warning, said:

"As far as I can remember the forecast 'east wind rain' meant 'rupture of United States-Japanese relations' and there were other eventualities provided for in the code."

Pittsburgh Strike Of Powermen Put Off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York City municipal officials have interviewed 1,000 city employees with engineering, mechanical and electrical aptitudes for emergency use in operating the metropolis' transit system in the event of city-wide transit strike. Meanwhile Pittsburgh's power strike was postponed a week.

The CIO Transport Workers' Union has threatened a walkout in New York at any time after midnight today unless wage increases and sole collective bargaining rights are granted.

The fire and police departments were alerted for possible duty, and Inspector James McElroy, in charge of the police planning board, said yesterday the city would try to run the subways and other transit facilities if the strike is called.

The Pittsburgh strike scheduled for 12:01 a. m. today was postponed last night for one week during which an attempt will be made to arbitrate wage differences between the Duquesne Light Company and its independent union.

The announcement was made by George Mueller, president of the union.

He made public the text of a statement issued at a meeting of the 51-man general committee of the union, which said the group "decided that the strike that is scheduled to start Feb. 26 be postponed one week and that a meeting of the membership be held Friday, March 1, to decide whether the wage issue be settled by arbitration or strike."

Meanwhile, R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, charged yesterday in Detroit that "President Truman let us down by not seeing that the report of his fact-finding committee (in the General Motors strike) was carried out."

The GM fact-finding panel proposed more than a month ago that a 19½-cent (17.5 per cent) wage increase be granted to settle

City, County To Buy Vote Machines

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Leaders of the Atlanta and Fulton county governments have voted to purchase 150 voting machines and there is a possibility they will be ready for balloting in the September state primary if delivery can be made by that time.

Citizens of Atlanta, including that portion of Atlanta which lies in DeKalb county, and Fulton county will thus use the voting machines for the first time as a result of an agreement reached yesterday between members of the Fulton county commission and city council's finance committee.

City leaders agreed to purchase 75 machines to match a similar purchase by the county with the following stipulations:

1. The city will buy the machines and will hold title to them.
2. They will be rented to county state election officials for their elections or primaries.

Decision to make the purchase came after a stormy meeting of the finance committee to which county leaders had been invited.

Mayor Hartsfield insisted that the city provide only half the funds necessary to buy the 75 machines which it is estimated will be needed in city elections, but Charlie Brown, chairman, and other members of the county commission, insisted that the county could not make the outlay on that basis.

Finally, Hartsfield and others agreed to negotiate for the machines if the city if title were retained by the city and if county and city executive committees would pay a uniform rental rate to both the governments for use of the machines.

No effort was made to determine the rental yesterday, but conferees were elated at the agreement through which voting machines were assured in future elections.

Members of executive committees of Atlanta and Fulton county have urged machines for 15 years, and they were enthusiastic about the prospect of trying them out for the first time in the September state primary.

Both governments indicated they are ready to proceed to secure the machines at once and that only obstacles in delivery will prevent their use this year.

Gertrude Perkins, director of the Atlanta League of Women Voters; Charles A. Morris, president of the Bass Community Council, who led a delegation of members to the meeting; Joseph M.

Wallace, defeated in a race for council in the 1945 city primary, appeared to urge immediate action.

Under a bill passed at the last session of the legislature, the county commission could be forced to call a referendum election on buying the machines if 10 per cent of the voters signed a petition demanding it. Brown referred to this provision when he urged the administration leaders to work out some plan for immediate action.

All commissioners except Ed L. Almond attended the meeting. Almond had a previous engagement.

Although Gilliam at first voted against the proposal for the city to acquire the 75 machines, he later relented and added his vote to the affirmative column, making it unanimous.

Shriner Chief Will Pay Visit to Yaarab Temple

The imperial potentate of the Shrine of North America, William H. Woodfield Jr., of San Francisco, will pay an official visit to Atlanta and to Yaarab Temple today.

He will discuss with Yaarab officers the postwar program of the Shrine and its greatly enlarged plans for its hospitals for crippled children.

Woodfield, the highest ranking Shriner in the W. H. WOODFIELD land, is on a nation-wide swing of 159 cities visiting Shrine Temples en route. He comes here from Savannah.

"The Shrine has pledged itself to assist the servicemen in one important field," Woodfield stated, "that is in finding a job. Shriners in all walks of life in every community are throwing their energies in this direction."

Woodfield also announced that a selected group of doctors will be awarded scholarships to study crippling diseases and their treatment in order to improve the Shrine hospitals. In addition, a series of scholarships will be awarded a group of nurses who will dedicate their work to the treatment of crippled children.

"A vast research program is being set up which will attempt to find the cause and treatment of bone and muscular disease," Woodfield said.

C. of Ga. Installs Two-Way Radios

Two-way radios have been installed in three switch engines of the Central of Georgia in the Atlanta freight yards in an experiment with a view to expediting freight traffic. The engineers can talk with the yard office and receive instructions where to place cars.

It was said that if the experiments prove satisfactory the railroad will put two-way radios in all its engines. Radio experts have been assigned to the freight terminal and are busy working out a system which may speed up switching of cars to a great extent.

TARVER WAITS PROBE REPORT

Abercrombie Fails Again To Unthaw Battey Freeze

A deadlock between Rep. Malcolm Tarver and the Veterans' Administration is causing a 10-million-dollar hospital to lie idle at Rome, Ga., and one million dollars in cash to lie idle in the State Health Department while thousands of Georgia tuberculosis patients remain uncared for.

This was the situation last night, after State Health Commissioner T. F. Abercrombie returned from Washington, where he had made another unsuccessful attempt to dislodge the Battey General hospital from a freeze imposed by Congressman Tarver.

Tarver is insisting that the hospital be used as a veterans' hospital.

The Veterans' Administration is insisting it does not want Battey General hospital.

And Abercrombie is fighting to obtain the hospital for use in treating tuberculosis patients.

Unless, neither the veterans nor the tuberculosis patients will be helped by the big, modern hospital, it was pointed out. Neither will the people of Rome receive any financial benefits from an empty hospital.

The people of Rome, themselves, reportedly are divided over the issue. Originally, most of them preferred a veterans' hospital because they anticipated greater spending by the federal government than by the state government.

Administration would not use the hospital, however, many Rome citizens sought to have the state take over the hospital.

Abercrombie estimated the state would spend upwards to $3,000,000 on food and pay rolls in that section, if Battey became a state tuberculosis hospital.

The Georgia legislature recently asked the Georgia congressional delegation to obtain Battey for a state tuberculosis hospital. It showed its good faith by appropriating $1,000,000 to operate Battey.

When Abercrombie met with federal officials to sign a contract for the hospital, however, the deal was stopped by Congressman Tarver. He asked that it be held up for 60 days. Then he put his appropriations committee to work investigating why the Veterans' Administration would not accept Battey. Abercrombie quoted Tarver as stating he is awaiting a report by these probers.

NAM Accuses Government Of Political Deal With CIO

ASHTABULA, Ohio, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Robert Wason, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, charged Monday that the federal government was granting concessions to the CIO in exchange for its political support, seriously endangering industry and agriculture, the professions and personal services.

As a result, he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Ashtabula chamber of commerce, the national economy is "distorted by strains and stresses."

"In exchange for votes and power, government makes concessions to organized labor at the expense of the other three-quarters of the laboring economy," he said. "The interests of all consumers, of all white-collar laborers, and all investors have been forgotten in the exchange of concessions for CIO support."

Wason asserted that it was impossible for the government to create workable employment relationships when it, "as a referee, picks up the ball and scores a touchdown for the CIO."

"In consequence," he said, "the nation has been bludgeoned with strikes. Their fires have consumed the daily substance of millions of Americans. Some settlements have been made on a fire-alarm basis. Some are in prospect. The fires may be put out temporarily by half-measures. Walter Reuther, United Automobile Workers (CIO) vice president, has given assurance that they will be renewed. Any current settlement, he said, will be only a 'down payment' on the future."

"The upset caused by these goings-on in our managed economy is spreading to agriculture. The farmers want a higher parity—a higher subsidy to be able to pay higher wages to their farmhands. Otherwise they will lose them to the factories, where wages now run better than $50 a week for 40 hours."

"And from shortage of farm labor will come shortage of food crops and what will that do to a hungry world—and to the cost of living?"

PRICE ON WORSTEDS REVISED BY OPA IN ATTEMPT TO PROVIDE MORE SUITS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Seeking to increase supplies of men's suits, OPA Monday revised its maximum average price regulation covering worsted fabrics.

OPA said it could not estimate how much production of worsted fabrics for suits might be increased under the revised program.

"The purpose of the order," an OPA spokesman said, "is simply to remove any production impediment that might have been caused by MAP."

This will be accomplished, he added, by freeing fabric producers of the requirement that the average price of their total production be no greater than it was in the base period. Under the new order, only the amount of material produced during the base period must be calculated in determining an allowable average price.

Any production in excess of 100,000 yards would be exempt. This, OPA contends, will stimulate production of suiting fabrics which usually are more expensive—because manufacturers will not have to balance the excess amount with a proportionate share of cheaper fabrics.

Constitution Staff Writer

SYCAMORE, Feb. 26.—If you travel in Georgia today, don't get sick. And whatever you do, avoid accidents that might cause you to require medical or surgical attention. You might die.

The shortage of doctors is growing more acute each day—that is if the complaints of the people are a fair barometer. You hear it on every hand and in almost every community you visit—"no doctors, or the ones we have are working themselves to death, going night and day."

The shortage is bad for everybody but works a worse handicap on the traveler. Your best bet is to get sick or have your accidents at home where possibly you swing influence with some doctor or know someone who does.

It's getting that bad, where influence counts in getting medical aid.

And try getting into a hospital. Hospital rooms are as rationed as hotel rooms.

QUEUE UP COMING?

It is coming to where you'll have to queue up for medical help—get your appointment in well in advance.

And while hospital rooms are short, it's even worse if you haven't got the money to reserve one. They tell you in some of these Georgia communities that doctors won't treat you now unless you go to a hospital. It isn't that the doctors are becoming hardened and calloused to suffering. They just can't spend a lot of time traveling to and fro. Too many patients.

Sycamore, for instance, doesn't have a doctor. They had two, but both died and they used to serve a big block of Turner county.

"We have to get our doctoring done in Ocala, 20 miles away, or in Albany, which is farther," declares I. J. Wright, who says he needs medical care now because he has "gravel stones," but can't get as much as he should have.

"Can't you write something in the paper that would induce a young doctor to locate here?" asked Mrs. Theima Pierce, who works in a Sycamore drug store and knows of the dire need for medical care on the part of the people of the community. Many such calls clear through her store.

APPENDICITIS, NO DOCTOR

"I had an attack of appendicitis not long ago," she said. "I couldn't get a doctor to come here. I had to go to Tifton, about 20 miles away."

The people here told me of Dr. W. J. Turner, over in Ashburn. He's 77 and started practicing back in the days when doctors rode horseback to visit their patients and operations were performed in the kitchen. But he's still active today, going night and day, ministering to the needs of the sick for miles around. He can't quit now. There are too many people sick and too few doctors.

They think a lot of Dr. Turner here and in his home town of Ashburn, where he has been practicing for more than 50 years.

"We don't know what we'd do without him," they say.

"There's such a shortage of doctors," declares his charming wife. "Dr. Turner can't go as much as he used to, of course, but he does as much as he is physically able. We need a young doctor in this community."

My dear girls:

"Old grandpa has retired. Fifty-two years, seven days a week is all I had. Henceforth I will keep house for Doc (his wife) and bathe the dawg. I may plant some onions and beans."

Dr. Hertzler said he also plans to write his "last book," entitled "The Child in Civilization," and will be available to the hospital in an advisory capacity.

Rise in Living Costs Forecast by Eccles

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(UP)—Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board predicted Monday that the cost of living may rise to 40 per cent above prewar levels, 10 per cent more than now, under the administration's new wage-price policy.

He raised the prospect of costlier merchandise in urging the House Banking and Currency Committee to extend the price control act, due to expire June 30, as long as necessary for short supplies to catch up with demand.

"Price controls are virtually our last bulwark against increasing costs of living," he said. As he testified, President Truman, by executive order, re-established the Office of Economic Stabilization and formally placed Price Administrator Chester Bowles at its head. The order also revives the Economic Stabilization Board. Both were early postwar casualties but are being brought back to life to support the battle against inflation.

Rep. Wright Patman, Democrat, Texas, drew the cost of living prediction from the dapper Eccles. He asked him for his estimate on the value of today's dollar as compared with the prewar greenback.

"According to OPA figures, the dollar is about 30 per cent inflated," Eccles replied. "This is as good a job as any country has done to control inflation. Canada perhaps has done a little better."

"I should think that with increased wages and prices under the new wage-price policy, there is a possibility, according to some estimates, that we may get an increase to a maximum of 40 per cent. I think that if the cost of living can be held to 40 per cent above the prewar cost, then we will have done a good job in view of the large public financing."

He said "it is beyond dispute that the money supply today is at an all-time high level, that there is a greater backlog of demand for all kinds of goods than ever before."

He said that policies dealing with the money side of the inflation equation should be accomplished.

COMMISSION FOR SECRETARY—Ben W. Fortson Jr., of Wilkes county, signs his commission as he takes office as secretary of state for Georgia. Looking on is Gov. Arnall, who made the appointment yesterday.

Fortson Won Big 'T' For Boxing at Tech

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Georgia's new secretary of state, Ben W. Fortson Jr., who was sworn in yesterday by Gov. Arnall, used to go home every Saturday with a black eye when last he lived in Atlanta. That was before he became an invalid, and before he entered Georgia's political field. He hopes conditions are different today.

Back in 1923, Fortson won a "T" as light-heavyweight champion on Georgia Tech's boxing team. Those were the days of his black eyes. The physically well-developed man turned to chess and fishing as hobbies after an automobile accident in 1929 paralyzed both his legs.

Formerly in the banking business, Fortson first turned to politics as a hobby. He has served two terms in the senate and two terms in the house without opposition. Yesterday he turned professional when he accepted the $6,000-a-year job as secretary of state.

SINCERE, HONEST

Fortson, who impresses his fellow Georgians with his sincerity and honesty, made a deep impression on Dale Carnegie, author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People." Carnegie introduced himself to the man in the wheel chair in an Atlanta hotel, and then wrote a syndicated column on "the happiest man I have ever seen—Ben Fortson."

Quite a speaker and quite a fighter for the underdog, Fortson got his start in public speaking and governmental interest when he won medals at Starks University school at Montgomery, Ala. In his prep school essay, Fortson urged that Muscle Shoals be used for the benefit of all the people rather than for just a few. Recently, Fortson has exercised this speaking and public spirited talents to help repeal the poll tax in Georgia, and in unsuccessful efforts to lift the ban on Gov. Arnall serving a second term.

He won the military medal at Starks, a military school, but never put his military training into practice. He was too young for the first war, and physically unfit for the second.

STATE INSPECTOR

Fortson rolled his rolling chair over Georgia last year inspecting state institutions and recommending a $28,000,000 building program. As chairman of the hygiene and sanitation committee in the house, he helped expand the public health program.

Interested in education, Fortson served as chairman of the University of Georgia committee in both the senate and house. He is trustee of the Mary Willis library in Wilkes county, one of the first free county libraries to be established in America. He has been secretary-treasurer of the Washington school board. Also, in his native Wilkes county, Fortson is a steward in the Methodist church, director of the Kiwanis Club, and treasurer of the Red Cross.

The 41-year-old new state official is the son of the late Ben W. Fortson Sr., for several years reporter for the state supreme court and court of appeals, and Mrs. Fortson, who now resides at 233 Fourteenth street, N. E., Atlanta. Ben was in the banking business in Atlanta and Washington before his accident.

MARRIES IN '26

Fortson was married to Miss Mary Cade, of Washington, in 1926. Their daughter, Ann McNeill Fortson, is a student at Georgia State Woman's College at Valdosta.

Known for his loyalty, Secretary of State Fortson gave his first appointment yesterday to the man

EMBEZZLER HEAVES SIGH OF RELIEF; ILL-GOTTEN MONEY IS HELD TAX FREE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The supreme court Monday dealt this good news to a bookkeeper who embezzled $13,000 and lost most of it in Reno gambling: He doesn't have to pay $2,978 income tax on that $13,000.

The bookkeeper already has served a prison term. He was sentenced in a Nevada state court to 2-14 years, but was paroled after 18 months.

The federal government then insisted that the bookkeeper—Laird Wilcox, employed by the Nevada Transfer and Warehouse Company—should report the $13,000 as income and pay tax on it.

The ninth federal circuit court said that wouldn't be right and the highest tribunal Monday agreed. Furthermore, it said: "Moral turpitude is not a touchstone of taxability. . . . Sanctioning a tax under the circumstances before us would serve only to give the United States an unjustified preference as to part of the money which rightfully and completely belongs to the taxpayer's employer."

Burson Refuses To Serve Fortson

Napier Burson, chief deputy clerk to the late Secretary of State John B. Wilson, virtually announced his candidacy for the office of secretary of state yesterday as Gov. Arnall administered the oath of office to Ben W. Fortson.

Burson extended congratulations to Secretary of State Fortson, and then turned over the keys to the office to Fortson, saying "I cannot serve with you."

Burson had served as chief clerk for 16 years.

Rammed Bridge Useless For Several Months

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 25.—(AP)—A forecast that the huge Cooper river bridge would be out of use for two or three months came from a highway commissioner Monday as all travel to and from the east of Charleston was forced to make lengthy detours. Isaac D. Peek, resident commissioner, said repairs would require a minimum of two months. A span of the two-mile bridge was knocked out yesterday when it was rammed by a steamer that had dragged anchor during a squall.

WALTER R. THOMAS

A Message from President Truman

It is of the utmost importance that the American people understand the status and significance of our new Regular Army. It will be the duty of this volunteer Army to help protect the freedoms and maintain the peace we have won at so great a cost.

Atomic power has increased rather than decreased the necessity for our preparation, both in manpower and material. In the coming atomic age, the United States must maintain its military strength—to insure our national security and to promote world order.

Such grave responsibilities obviously cannot be met by anything less than the highest caliber of men. For this reason, I asked Congress for legislation to increase the opportunities of the soldier in the Regular Army. This legislation has been passed and signed by me, and is now in effect.

In serving his country, a man can now get good pay, education, travel and security—with family allowances for his dependents and a new 20-year retirement plan that compares with or exceeds anything in American industry. These, and the many other advantages of the new Regular Army, should be made known to all our service men and their families.

The Army has embarked upon a world-wide campaign to enlist enough men so that, in demobilizing, we shall not strip our services below the peacetime need. It is imperative that public support be given to this program. We must replace as soon as possible men who have served long and arduously, and who wish to return to civil life. We must also build an Army of volunteers adequate to all our requirements—at home and abroad—until the long-range peace terms and military policies are worked out.

I hope that every individual and group will give earnest and enthusiastic co-operation to this great effort to rebuild our Regular Army. The success of this campaign is vital to the performance of our tremendous task of securing the peace.

Harry Truman
PRESIDENT

Congress authorizes most attractive Enlistment Opportunities in our History

1. Enlistments for 1½, 2 or 3 years. (One-year enlistments permitted for men who have been in the Army six months.)
2. Enlistment age from 17 to 34 years inclusive, except for men now in Army, who may reenlist at any age, and former service men depending on length of service.
3. The best pay scale, medical care, food, quarters and clothing in Army history.
4. An increase in the reenlistment bonus to $50 for each year of active service since such bonus was last paid, or since last entry into service.
5. Up to 90 days' paid furlough, depending on length of service, with furlough paid to home and return, for men now in the Army who reenlist.
6. A 30-day furlough every year at full pay.
7. Mustering-out pay (based upon length of service) to all men who are discharged to reenlist.
8. Option to retire at half pay for the rest of your life after 20 years' service—increasing to three-quarters pay after 30 years' service. (Retirement income in grade of Master or First Sergeant up to $155.25 per month for life.) All previous active federal military service counts toward retirement.
9. Benefits under the GI Bill of Rights.
10. Family allowances for the term of enlistment for dependents of men who enlist or reenlist before July 1, 1946.
11. Opportunity to learn one or more of 200 skills and trades taught in Army schools in U. S. or occupied countries.
12. Choice of branch of service and overseas theater in the Air, Ground or Service Forces on 3-year enlistments.
13. Reserve and A.U.S. commissioned officers released from active duty may be enlisted in Grade 1 (Master Sergeant) and still retain their reserve commissions.

Mankin Slams Back Serves Of Capital Press, and Wins

By VIRGINIA VAN DER VEER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—“You all,” said Rep. Helen Douglas Mankin, “just make yourselves at home. Now what do you do at a press conference?”

The capital's press corps had come to meet a congresswoman, southern style. They let her have an hour-long verbal volley of questions—then surrendered to Dixie's one-woman gift to congress.

Atlanta's tall (five feet, nine inches “in my stocking feet”) freshman Democrat was at the door of her hotel suite with a firm handshake for all.

Gesturing toward the big living room overlooking the White House, she told her visitors frankly:

“Costs $20 a day. Come in and enjoy it.”

Deep-voiced Mrs. Mankin, an orchid corsage on her tailored black suit, plopped into a chair and volunteered this comment on her first day in congress:

“The corpus delicti.”

Inquisitive reporters found the newest congresswoman could handle the fastest questions they pitched. Perhaps it was baseball training. Mrs. Mankin said she used to play first base herself and is crazy about the Atlanta “Crackers.”

Would she be living in the hotel long?

“Not,” said Mrs. Mankin, “unless I get a cheaper room.”

Did she favor suffrage for the District of Columbia?

“To tell the truth, I don't know a dawg gone thing about it.”

What were her impressions on her first day in congress?

The house was “very nice” and the seats much more comfortable than the Georgia legislature.

The relentless questions found out also: Mrs. Mankin, a woman of decision, married her husband a week after they met. This was in Cuba when she was a tourist and he was working as a mechanical engineer.

The South's only woman in congress “votes wet and drinks dry.” She's known since childhood she would wind up in politics. She's frank to say the campaign kept her too busy to worry about President Truman's legislative program—but she intends to start now.

Mrs. Mankin said she'd be running again in the Georgia Democratic primary this fall. Would there be opposition?

“Honey,” said Rep. Mankin, “the woods are full of people who say they're going to run against me.”

The questions dwindled. Mrs. Mankin looked around the room regretfully.

“Wish I had something to feed you,” she said. “Never had this many people around before without something for them to eat.”

As the 15 women and six male reporters filed out, the newest congresswoman told them impulsively:

“You all please say something nice about me.”

They probably did.

House ‘Unhats’ Mankin;

It's an Old Custom

By LORRAINE NELSON,

Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The smart black hat she'd bought for the occasion hung in the foyer of the house of representatives Monday as hat-loving Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin was sworn in as Georgia's first and the nation's newest congresswoman.

Custom forbids the wearing of hats on the floor of the house. It's a custom with which Mrs. Mankin, who never appeared in the Georgia legislature without a hat, was not familiar.

Dressed in a sleek black wool suit, adorned with two orchids, and topped with a new quilted satin hat, the newly-elected “lady from Georgia” arrived at the capitol at the noon convening hour to be inducted. She was accompanied by her husband, Guy Mankin, who later witnessed this induction ceremony from the house gallery.

Mrs. Mankin, who admitted she was considerably excited by the occasion, was greeted first by Rep. Carl Vinson, dean of Georgia's house delegation, and then by Reps. Pace, Tarver, Wood, Brown and Cox.

She had met only Wood before. Others of the Georgia delegation were not present. Rep. Vinson escorted his new colleague into the office of House Speaker Sam Rayburn. Introductions over, Speaker Rayburn apologetically informed Mrs. Mankin that she couldn't wear a hat in the house.

“That was the custom before women came to congress—and it still is,” he explained.

A few minutes later, arranging the stylish little hat she couldn't wear in a safe spot next to the coat rack in the foyer, Mrs. Mankin remarked: “Well, I had fun buying it, anyway.”

Mrs. Mankin's induction was the main business of the day on Capitol Hill.

The house adjourned after a brief session, following the swearing in of the Georgia woman representative, in tribute to the late Rep. J. B. Snyder, of Pennsylvania, who died Sunday.

The senate did not convene.

REP. MANKIN AT CAPITOL—Congresswoman Helen Douglas Mankin, of Atlanta, is seen on the capitol steps in Washington with her husband, Guy Mankin, a mechanical engineer. She was sworn in yesterday to succeed former Rep. Robert Ramspeck, who resigned.

Atlanta's tall (five feet, nine inches “in my stocking feet”) freshman Democrat was at the door of her hotel suite with a firm handshake for all.

Gesturing toward the big living room overlooking the White House, she told her visitors frankly:

“Costs $20 a day. Come in and enjoy it.”

Deep-voiced Mrs. Mankin, an orchid corsage on her tailored black suit, plopped into a chair and volunteered this comment on her first day in congress:

“The corpus delicti.”

Inquisitive reporters found the newest congresswoman could handle the fastest questions they pitched. Perhaps it was baseball training. Mrs. Mankin said she used to play first base herself and is crazy about the Atlanta “Crackers.”

Would she be living in the hotel long?

“Not,” said Mrs. Mankin, “unless I get a cheaper room.”

Did she favor suffrage for the District of Columbia?

“To tell the truth, I don't know a dawg gone thing about it.”

What were her impressions on her first day in congress?

The house was “very nice” and the seats much more comfortable than the Georgia legislature.

The relentless questions found out also: Mrs. Mankin, a woman of decision, married her husband a week after they met. This was in Cuba when she was a tourist and he was working as a mechanical engineer.

The South's only woman in congress “votes wet and drinks dry.” She's known since childhood she would wind up in politics. She's frank to say the campaign kept her too busy to worry about President Truman's legislative program—but she intends to start now.

Mrs. Mankin said she'd be running again in the Georgia Democratic primary this fall. Would there be opposition?

“Honey,” said Rep. Mankin, “the woods are full of people who say they're going to run against me.”

The questions dwindled. Mrs. Mankin looked around the room regretfully.

LOCAL DOG POPULATION GETS BIG BOOST WHEN MOTHERHOOD COMES TO LASSIE

The sons of Lassie, a winsome little fox terrier with brown and white spots, who obligingly shares the home of her mistress, Mrs. J. T. Tuggle, at 3553 Briarcliff road, N. E., were coming thick and fast all day Sunday.

Lassie, whom Mrs. Tuggle had been expecting to give birth to “maybe three, maybe four” smaller editions for several weeks, started with offspring No. 1 early Sunday. Finally, in the late afternoon shadows of what had been a highly trying day for both Lassie and a greatly anxious neighborhood, Mrs. Tuggle announced her dog had hit the fox terrier jackpot of the canine world with a litter of eight offspring.

Yesterday the eight pups were being fed milk from an eye-dropper as Lassie looked on with an approving eye.

Mauldin To Stay In Athletic Post Arnall Asks Care For Paved Roads

Marshall Mauldin, former star center fielder of the Atlanta Crackers, will remain in his post as Fulton county athletic director under an agreement reached between the Fulton county commission and the county civil service board.

Mauldin has been athletic director for the past 18 months, but could not qualify under civil service rules for the job because he is not a college graduate.

“He is the best man we could find for the job,” said Commissioner Ellis Barrett, chairman of parks and recreation.

Mrs. Ruth Knight, secretary of the civil service board, said her board would reclassify Mauldin's job so that the requirement of a college education would be eliminated.

Gov. Arnall has asked the State Highway Department to protect its investment in paved roads as well as to lay new pavement on dirt roads.

In a letter to Highway Director George McDonald yesterday, Arnall said he had found many paved highways in bad state of repair. He urged that the department preserve these paved roads.

“While it is important to pave dirt roads and to go in for new construction, we also must maintain the roads we already have,” The Governor said.

HAD TO LIVE ON SOFT FOODS FOR FIVE YEARS; RETONGA PROVES MERIT

MRS. W. O. MCDANIEL

Grocer's Wife Was Down To Only 89 Lbs. And Unable To Do Her Housework. Regains 19 Lbs. And Feels Fine.

“When I began taking Retonga I weighed less than one hundred pounds and felt so run down I could hardly keep on the go, but now I have regained nineteen pounds and feel like a different person,” happily declares Mrs. W. O. McDaniel, well-known home owner of 948 Kirkwood Avenue, S. E. Atlanta. Mrs. McDaniel's husband is proprietor of a popular grocery store and they are well-known throughout their section. In relating her experience with this famous herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine Mrs. McDaniel gratefully continued:

“It is hard to believe that anyone could suffer more distress from acid indigestion, sore muscles and run-down feeling than I did. For about five years I dared not eat a bite of solid food and was forced to live on broths, soups and soft foods. Even then everything I ate seemed to turn as sour as vinegar in my stomach and torture me with acid indigestion. I lost weight until I was down to only eighty-nine pounds and did not have the strength to do my housework. Any unexpected noise would upset me for hours. I felt so restless and uncomfortable at night that it was usually about four o'clock before I could get to sleep and my husband told me many times he did not see how I lived on the little sleep I got. At times every muscle in my body felt sore and painful. I felt so high-strung and weakened that every day was just a dread to me, and I had little hope of ever feeling good again. “Nobody could be more thankful than I am for the relief Retonga brought to me. I enjoy my meals with a fine appetite and everything seems to agree with me. I have regained nineteen pounds, I sleep as restfully as a child and I feel so much stronger that I do all my housework again and even help my husband in his grocery business. I can never say half enough for Retonga.”

Retonga is a purely herbal gastric tonic combined with liberal quantities of Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of gastric juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Square Deal Drug Store, 10 Broad St., N. W., opposite the Arcade and May's Cut Rate Drug Store, 112 Whitehall St., next to Sterchi's.

City Salesmen To Observe Anniversary

A banquet and dance to be held at 6:30 p. m. Saturday in the Dixie Ballroom of the Henry Grady hotel will commemorate the golden anniversary of the City Salesmen Association of Atlanta.

Installation of officers will be made by Paul West, who will also serve as principal speaker, and Douglas McRae will be toastmaster for the occasion. Ralph Grimes and J. P. Hill will act as chairmen of the banquet and entertainment features, including the reading of the organization history by Commissioner Charlie Brown.

Salesmen in this territory, representing manufacturers, jobbers or wholesalers who solicit retail trade, and their wives are invited, according to the announcement from Frank Bettis, president.

Out-of-town guests will include: Tom Draughan, president of the Birmingham Salesmen Club; Bert L. Simpson, first vice president of the Salesmen of Alabama, and Paul Meeks, executive vice president of the Salesmen of Alabama.

Reservations may be made by calling N. T. Chambers, Raymond 0287.

Atlantans Join Jewish Appeal

Four Atlantans have joined in the official opening of a nationwide campaign to raise $100,000 for the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine, the largest single Jewish drive in history.

Frank Garson, Edward M. Kahn, A. J. Weinberg and I. M. Weinstein attended the weekend meeting in Washington, where 350 Jewish leaders launched the campaign and pledged themselves to join in an unprecedented effort to save and rebuild the lives of 1,400,000 Jewish survivors in Europe.

Jurors Flay DeKalb Cannery, Negro Schools, Jail, Almshouse

By HOWELL JONES

Condemning the condition of Negro schools as "a reflection on the good name of the county," the December term of the DeKalb county grand jury has called for immediate action to remedy the situation.

The retiring jury, of which J. W. Battle served as foreman, also rapped the county jail, almshouse and the county cannery and recommended minor reforms in those institutions.

Acting on a report made by a special investigating committee composed of Dr. Sam Guy, chairman; A. E. Foster, J. W. Battle, J. E. Ingram and Paul Newsome, which, in co-operation with H. E. Nelson, county superintendent of education, made a survey of all county schools, the grand jury charged that Negro schools both in buildings and equipment were in extremely poor repair.

The report stated that all buildings used for Negro schools are for the most part poor and in some instances are not even owned by the county, but are either borrowed Negro churches or, in some instances, poorly constructed buildings in out-of-the-way places which the Negroes have paid for with their own collections.

BAD HEATING

In some schools Negro children were found huddled about defective stoves and some have to travel as much as five miles without bus transportation and in many cases children go without lunch, the report continued.

In calling for immediate action to improve conditions in Negro schools, the jury also recommended that arrangements be made to furnish federal aid lunches to all schools in DeKalb county even if it means "only a glass of milk and a bowl of soup."

Negro teachers were commended for their ability and state of morale and loyalty to the system.

The grand jury expressed satisfaction in the condition of white schools and also commended the efficiency and loyalty of the teachers.

ONLY TWO MEALS

In investigating other county institutions, the grand jury found the almshouse to be run in as satisfactory a manner as its "meager equipment would permit," but hit at a rule adopted by the matron on Jan. 1 of this year under which only two meals are prepared daily for the inmates. The jury recommended that "these unfortunate people be fed three meals daily and that all rules regarding food care and health of these people be made by the county board of welfare or other qualified people and not by the matron."

The county jail was found to be in good condition generally but for beds and mattresses, which were very dirty. It has been recommended that a sufficient amount of bed linen be obtained to insure at least two changes a week.

JAIL REPORT

The jury also charged that inmates of the jail were not given proper attention when ill, and recommended that services of Grady hospital, now available to the county, and the county physician be given to sick prisoners.

Deploping conditions at the county cannery located at the county convict camp as "terrible and under which it is doubtful a private ly-owned plant would be allowed to operate," the jury recommended that the yard be cleaned and the buildings painted.

The presentments also included a concurrence in the appointment of Capt. Ed. Foster as acting chief of police and commended County Commissioner Scott Candler for refusing to renew licenses for public dance halls in the county.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Painful Backache Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief filters. They filter the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 8 quarts a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's gives rapid relief and will help the 16 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Judge Refuses To Recognize Divorce Act

JONESBORO, Feb. 25.—Persons seeking a divorce and thinking they would walk out of court here this morning free of wedlock bonds received a decided jolt when Judge James C. Davis, of Stone Mountain superior court, declared he did not hold valid the new state law under which a superior court judge could grant divorces without a jury trial.

Judge Davis made the statement in open court here as he held a one-day session to consider uncontested divorce cases.

Explaining his decision afterward, Judge Davis said, "Both the old and the new constitution state that a code cannot be repealed by merely referring to a previous code. Instead, the new act must describe the law being repealed and state exactly what is being repealed."

The new law granting divorces at one hearing and without a jury trial does not satisfy this requirement, the judge said, but refers only to the old law by code number in repealing it.

Robert A. Keith, 81, Contractor, Dies

Robert Allen Keith, 81, of 525 Terrace avenue, N. E., a retired contractor, died yesterday morning in a private hospital following an illness of six weeks.

A native of Greenville, S. C., Mr. Keith had lived in Atlanta for 35 years. He is survived by his wife; six daughters, Mrs. Ernest Holloway, of Dalton; Mrs. B. Rice, Mrs. Ralph Blackwood, of Norwood, N. C.; Mrs. Jake Doster, of Mobile; Miss Louise Keith and Mrs. T. A. Summey; three sons, R. T. Keith, of Washington, D. C.; Steve and Dick Keith.

VE JOY BRINGS LONDON BABIES

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(UP) The birth rate in London for the first seven weeks of 1946 is one-third greater than for the same period last year, it was disclosed Monday.

Births numbered 6,112 for 1946 compared to 4,338 for the same period in 1945. The population investigation committee attributed the increase to "general relief and joy after VE day" on May 8, 1945.

A. T. & T. Earnings Past 171 Million in 1945

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported Monday for 1945 net income of $171,640,228, equal to $8.66 a common share, compared with $163,165,614, or $8.54 a share, in 1944.

Net income of the Bell System applicable to American Telephone & Telegraph stock was $177,057,840, or $8.93 a share, against $169,856,561, or $8.89 a share, in 1944.

Realty Men Pay $125,000 for Ottley Estate

In order to prepare for a large suburban real estate development, a group of realty operators has purchased for $125,000 the 67-acre estate of the late John K. Ottley, Atlanta banker, on Peachtree road, beyond Buckhead.

This estate, "Joyeuse," has a frontage of about 1,067 feet on Peachtree road, N. E. It is said to be the largest undeveloped road frontage in Fulton county.

The buyers were Haas & Dodd, Atlanta real estate operators, and the Ottley estate negotiated the sale through the Draper-Owens Company in co-operation with the Adams-Cates Company.

Judson M. Garner, manager of the real estate department of Haas & Dodd, the purchasers, explained that practically all of the Peachtree road frontage to a depth of from 500 to 600 feet is being reserved for a high-class apartment house development.

To develop the rest of the property, the new owners will cut roads and streets through the estate for subdivision into building lots. The apartment project will wait until later, but the new owners plan to begin work on the new subdivision at an early date.

'Obligated,' Brownell Says

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(UP) Herbert Brownell Jr. announced officially Monday night that he will resign as chairman of the Republican National Committee April 1 because his "professional" obligations will make it impossible for him to devote full time to the committee.

"In justice to the party, as well as to my family and myself, I must retire on the eve of victory," he said in a statement predicting the Republicans will win control of congress in the November elections.

HANDLE WITH CARE

We're working mighty hard on a big job we've got to deliver—our $300,000,000 expansion program. It's an all embracing program that will provide better telephone service and telephones for all who want them.

The job ahead of us is one that must be handled with care. The vast sum of money involved places a heavy responsibility on both management and employees. It will be spent wisely and cautiously and with the same care that has always characterized telephone operations.

There is also the responsibility of maintaining adequate earnings so that the funds needed to build more telephone facilities can be secured. The money will have to come, as it has in the past, from thrifty people putting their hard earned cash in the Telephone Company. But unless they have confidence in the safety of their investment and feel assured of a reasonable return on that investment, new funds for future telephone expansion will not be forthcoming.

So it is easy to see that telephone earnings have a direct bearing on the future of telephone service.

ALA. S. S. TEACHER THANKS SCALF'S FOR STRENGTH TO WORK

Suffered From Smothering Gas Pressure Pains, Vomiting Spells, Awful Pains About Stomach, After Lifting Anything Heavy; Felt Weak, Tired, Unable To Do Any Work. Scalf's Brought Prompt and Comforting Relief, Declares Mrs. Miller. Able To Work, Feeling Fine on Scalf's. Tells of Case.

Declaring that Scalf's Indian River Medicine relieved her of five years of distress and she regained fifteen pounds of needed weight, Mrs. G. W. Miller, a splendid Christian mother of Gadsden, Ala., who is a Sunday School teacher and active in other church work, adds her name to the thousands praising this time-proven family medicine.

"The best favor I can do anyone suffering as I did is to tell them about Scalf's," declared Mrs. Miller. "I suffered such severe distress from smothering gas pressure pains after meals that it seemed all I could do to get my breath. Often I was up most of the night suffering from nausea and vomiting spells. I could not lift anything heavy without suffering intense pains about my stomach. I do not know what caused my trouble, but I was so weak and tired all the time I was not able to do my work."

"Since taking Scalf's Indian River Medicine I have improved wonderfully, can do all my housework and feel better than in years. My appetite is so much better I get hungry now and can eat and enjoy foods I haven't been able MRS. G. W. MILLER. to eat for years. I'm getting stronger all the time and I feel like a different person. The vomiting and stomach pains are relieved—I sleep good, and I have put on fifteen pounds of much needed weight. I'm happy to tell others about Scalf's Indian River Medicine, for it gave me relief after everything else I tried failed."

Scalf's Indian River Medicine is an herbal stomach tonic intended to increase the appetite and relieve smothering gas pressure pains by aiding digestion. The first bottle is guaranteed to bring satisfactory relief or your money back. Try it today. Draft Act Extension Indicated

Despite an extensive nation-wide recruiting campaign, the Army, at last reports, had enlisted only a little more than one-third the 1,500,000 men which has been set as its postwar goal.

There is, of course, some possibility that the quota will be reached. But at this time, it seems highly unlikely. In fact, many doubt our ability to raise even a million men by voluntary enlistment.

Yet the United States must certainly maintain armed forces of at least such strength if our occupation duties are to be carried out successfully and if we are to protect ourselves from possible eventualities in a world not too far removed from war.

That means it is time for congress to renew the Selective Service Act which otherwise will shortly expire.

Thus far legislative leaders have been unable to agree on any plan of universal military training, a circumstance which does not reflect credit on either the administration or service officials. In the absence of such a program, our only present recourse seems to lay in an extension of Selective Service so that the personnel which it must have to remain a positive force for peace can be furnished our standing Army.

Only a few weeks remain in which this can be done.

With so much cause for apprehension on every side, congress dares not invite trouble by abandoning our greatest single bulwark against the dangers of sudden war.

A Capable Man Succeeds Another

Georgia lost a competent and conscientious official in the death of John B. Wilson, who served for many years secretary of state.

But Governor Arnall, in naming Ben W. Fortson to succeed him, has delegated the duties of this important office to a man capable of carrying on Wilson's work in the same intelligent manner.

"Ben Fortson has worked harder for my political advancement than anybody I know," the Governor told a reporter in explaining the appointment. "He kept working for the second-term amendment even after I tried to stop him. I would be an ingrate not to give him anything in my power that he might want."

All of which is very true. But the appointment will meet with general state-wide favor, not because Ben Fortson was due the post, but because he is recognized throughout Georgia as a capable and trustworthy citizen who will do a good job in it. He worked hard for Ellis Arnall's political advancement, to be sure. But he did it because he knew that it was to the state's lasting advantage to do so.

Ben Fortson will make a splendid secretary of state. The Constitution wishes him a long and pleasant tenure.

Death-Trap Tires Condemned

The services rendered by the Office of Price Administration often go beyond those which result in holding down prices and curbing the ever-present danger of inflation.

An outstanding example of this sort of service is shown in the report recently issued by OPA which stated that during the past year, that agency has removed from the national market millions of 15-cent, junkyard automobile tires, which had been recapped to sell for approximately 10 dollars.

The unsuspecting buyer purchased what was apparently a good recapped tire; but some of these tires, which were seized in carload lots, were built on casings so badly worn that blowouts were likely to occur during the first 50 miles of driving. The danger of such tires is self-evident; untold numbers of accidents and deaths have been prevented through this action of OPA.

It is reported that 10 criminal cases, 100 cases for treble damages, and 144 injunctions already have been filed. Many of these cases involve wholesale dealers.

Judge Patrick T. Stone of the United States district court of Madison, Wisconsin, told two Chicago dealers charged with selling the worthless tires, "It is difficult for the court to understand the workings of minds of men that engage in this nefarious business. You are placing tires on the market that are endangering the lives of men, women and children and the drivers of the cars using those tires.

"To me, your conduct is atrocious, outrageous, abominable and criminal," said Judge Stone.

In Georgia alone last year there were 650 deaths resulting from accidents. For the first 11 months of 1945 the deaths for the nation total 25,220, as compared with 21,550 for the first 11 months of 1944. Nearly all of the cars on the road today are more than four years old; the hazards of using these worn vehicles would be greatly accentuated by the use of the "death-trap" tires which OPA has removed from the market.

The Plucked Peacocks of Nazidom

NUERNBERG, Germany.—(By Mail)—As I stepped toward the door to enter the trial room of the Nazi war criminals I had in mind their entry into Vienna in 1938 at the start of their plan.

I recalled Hitler, now dead, whom the bitter Germans now said did not have the courage to live and face defeat. I remembered, too, the bulk of Goering with his medals. In my mind, too, was the picture of Hess and of Rosenberg and of Seyss-Inquart, von Papen and others. They were peacocks in those days, gilded and gaudy and arrogant.

As I looked at them, walking to my seat in the third row, I shook my head and into my mind came the trite old phrase, "Lo, how the mighty have fallen."

They sit in a box which is like one of our jury boxes, except this one holds almost 24 men, not 12. Behind each of those in the rear row stands an American soldier. By each end of the box where the criminals sit, stand two more.

But the men themselves are the show. They look like almost any jury one might get together in any city court. There is no sign of former greatness about them. Their suits are commonplace. Their features are not noble or handsome. Only one, Gen. Keitel, looks at all distinguished. After all, they were never distinguished by learning, education, character, or any of the attributes one associates with greatness. They were cunning and, in some instances, very able. They were cruel and merciless. They were liars, and they were corrupt in their private and public lives. They look so, sitting there, while the witnesses and the documents steadily, inexorably, reveal their guilt.

The man makes copious notes. More than any other of the defendants, he listens with great intension to the proceedings. The others at times show evidences of weariness. Not Goering. He bends forward, he stares, he gets an inspiration and writes a note which is handed to one of the attorneys for the defense, he confers with those about him.

Rudolf Hess, who flew to England to give us one of the early bits of good news when that item was so scarce, sits next to Goering. The two talk often, but most of the time Hess stares ahead, wrapped in his own thoughts. He it was who startled the court by rising to protest that his lawyer, who was arguing insanity, was wrong. He was not, said Hess, insane. Even now his attorney works away despite a warning from Hess that he wants no defense.

Gen. Keitel, too, makes frequent notes. The others mostly sit and listen through their earphones.

Von Papen, who was in trouble in America in the first World War, who helped make Hitler who married the daughter of a Weisbaden champagne manufacturer and became rich; who was the sinister agent for most of Hitler's moves in diplomacy, rarely listens. When the proof of terrible cruelty and atrocity comes on, he refuses to listen. For the most part, he sits with head in hands, thinking.

What Are Their Thoughts? One would give a lot to know what he thinks, as, indeed, one would give a lot to know what is in the minds of the others about him and in the heads of those Germans who go about the street. What do they think of it now? A lot of men in high places would like the answer to that. What does the farmer one sees out in his field think about things? That would be an interesting thing to know, too.

The prisoners live in the usual jail cells. They have a chair, too frail to hold the weight of a man should he stand on it, and a cot which is fixed to the wall. Outside each cell is a guard whose orders are that every 30 seconds he must look into the cell. The chair is taken out at night. The men eat the usual Army fare. No more.

Despite precautions, two have committed suicide. They could not endure the strain of it, the facts of it, and their Lucifer-like fall from glory. That must plague them all; must at times drive them to the edge of madness. They were once so strong and powerful; armies marched for them; planes roared for them; men died for them; they heard not the prayers of the thousands who groaned and died miserably in prison camps. They flourished like the green bay tree and were cut down.

Now they sit with the label "criminal" upon them—and the evidence mounts.

They Said Frontiers All Reached Before

Some people say the last frontier has been reached. That there is no further opportunity for the man who would pioneer and open new areas for development and human advancement.

They said the last frontier had been reached when they linked transportation from east and west.

They said, in 1880, there was no further industrial progress possible, that man had discovered everything there was to discover, that nothing new could be expected.

Try to think of the myriad of industries which have been born and have become among the greatest of them all since then. In 1880 itself aluminum was first discovered.

Think of the automobile and the motion picture industries which came into being in the nineties. Think of the aviation industry which has grown into day's mighty oak from the little acorn planted on that Carrol beach by the Wright Brothers in the first years of the new century.

After the first World War men said there could be nothing new. Then came radio. Radio as we know it today has developed entirely since the days of that first World War. It opened new channels for enterprise, new opportunities for men of imagination, it created an entire new industry which today is one of the nation's greatest.

What Will Come? No man can say what new frontiers are awaiting man's courage and development, just around the corner, within the next few years.

We have dreamed of the development of aviation and the manufacture of planes for commercial and private use, as the great opportunity of postwar years of the second World War. This may well prove true, before many more years have gone.

It may be, though, that some new creation of man's ingenuity, as yet dimly glimpsed, it glimpsed at all, will be the industrial frontier to challenge the brains and the strength of today's generation.

We cannot guess what opportunities will come out of man's ability to utilize the enormous force in the atom.

Perhaps it will be a development of radar that will create not one, but a score of industrial frontiers to challenge.

Perhaps television will be the channel for the utilization of our energy and enthusiasm.

Who can tell? One thing, however, is sure. That is, the new frontiers are there, they wait only man's imagination and man's courage for the tackling.

They Point the Way One truth must never be overlooked. No matter what the frontier, whether it be geographic, scientific, industrial, the first pioneers but rarely live to garner the fruits of their courage.

Just as in the days when men struggled to push the frontiers of the physical world, it is the bleached bones of the pioneers which mark the path which others will follow until the goal sought is reached.

In science, in research, it is not the man who makes the final, astounding discovery who has done all the preliminary work. His discovery, or invention, or whatever you will, is but the capstone that completes the work done by thousands of pioneers in that particular field.

That rule is true in all the marvelous scientific and mechanical things we use today.

It will likewise be true of the yet undreamed marvels which will be ours tomorrow.

Frontiers all reached? Ridiculous. There will always be new frontiers awaiting man's conquering tread.

All that we need is courage, persistence, imagination. There were far more frontiers awaiting man's enterprise, in 1880, than had ever been conquered before. Most of those frontiers are still unconquered, unvisioned by most of us.

So long as man has imagination and courage there will always be frontiers to conquer.

That is axiomatic to life.

Don't Forget the Umbrella

ROBERT QUILLEN

There Can Be But One Boss

If little Junior must have a new suit, does it matter greatly whether the selection is made by dad or mother? Does it matter who chooses a new light fixture for the living room?

In some cases it matters very much, indeed. The argument is not about the thing chosen, but who shall do the choosing. And such arguments, apparently of trivial origin, start many bitter quarrels and sometimes break up homes.

There can be but one boss, if any, and there is no compromise when two egos compete for the job.

When the office straw-boss observes that a filing cabinet has been moved a few inches, he roars in wrath: "Who authorized this?" When he gets an answer, he says: "Put it back where it was. I'm giving the orders around here, and don't you forget it." The offense was not in moving the cabinet, but in daring to disregard his monopoly of authority.

Silly? Of course it is silly. But it is a manifestation of man's competitive spirit that cannot be safely ignored, for directly or indirectly it affects the lives of all people.

There are people who dress responsibility and desire no authority. They are natural followers. But there are others who crave authority as a rumpus craves a drink the morning after. They cannot be happy in any group unless they can boss it. Any one of them would rather be absolute boss in a hick town than second man in New York City.

How many people have died and how greatly the concord of nations is disturbed because a fool named Peron is determined to be the Mussolini of Argentina!

The great and near-great who enjoy responsibility are usually unable to share their authority. Their explanation is the ancient one, "The only way to get a thing done right is to do it yourself." But the word "right" always means "my way."

Roosevelt's weakness as an executive was that he could not delegate authority. He appointed many men to do many things, but he seldom gave one the power to do his job right. He always kept the strings in his own hands.

Churchill did the same thing—when he could. All British military men—even those of superior rank—cheerfully acknowledged the supreme authority of Eisenhower. But Churchill tried to run things from start to finish, and Ike's job was made doubly hard by having to argue every move with the P. M.—all day and half the night.

Most of the rows in Washington result from "the struggle for power"—which means only that men with authority have an itch for more and suffer when they see somebody else bossing something. We have many who would be benevolent tyrants if the law did not limit their power.

WHITE PRIMARIES
THING OF PAST
(Lowndes County News, Valdosta.)

In the city primary held here Tuesday, in which Negroes were given the privilege of voting and in which some 300 cast their ballots, it became obvious that primaries were of no further significance. It also proved that whites and Negroes can go to the polls and vote at the same time on the same issues without any bitter feeling.

The occasion marked a great forward step for the Negroes in Valdosta, to whom we think a large part of the credit for no disturbance is due.

Brownell Leaving The Field to Truman?

Herbert Brownell is resigning as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Mr. Brownell will be remembered, though doubtless he'd rather not, as the gent who managed Tom Dewey's campaign in 1944.

National chairmen are recompensed in patronage rather than money. That means Mr. Brownell's has been strictly a labor of love.

The Republicans have had less patronage at their disposal during the past 14 years than under any administration since Jefferson Davis.

Their political fortunes reached an all-time low recently when a GOP senator had to clear with Hannegan the appointment of an assistant janitor in a fourth-class post office in a conservative section of Maine.

As party chairman, Brownell has been charged with the task of bringing about a GOP victory in '46 and '48. It is not known whether a successor will be named or Republicans will merely rely on President Truman.

Certainly the President's insistence on the confirmation of civilian Ed Pauley as Navy undersecretary seems to bear out the report that he has no intention of seeking re-election.

Bowles Answers NAM Propaganda

WASHINGTON.—The propaganda theme being put out by the National Association of Manufacturers in its campaign to eliminate government price controls is that such controls in peacetime hinder the production of goods.

"... goods are still scarce," the association is proclaiming to the public in a series of full-page newspaper advertisements over the country. "Store shelves are still bare. The national pocketbook continues to bulge. Inflation grows."

"Why? Because price controls in peacetime hinder the production of goods. Business cannot live by producing at a loss. And so, goods that can't be made to sell at the prices fixed by the government just don't get made."

All of that has a certain ring of plausibility to it. The public is likely to be misled by the outcry unless the facts are fully explored. It is an outcry for greater profits.

The most effective answer to the manufacturers' propaganda has been given by Mr. Chester Bowles, the OPA chief and new economic stabilization director.

No Politician Mr. Bowles is an able, cool-headed business executive. There is nothing of the politician or the professional politico about him.

It is interesting to consider Mr. Bowles' reply to the attack of the NAM. In a recent appearance before the House Banking and Currency Committee, now holding hearings on the OPA extension bill, he took up the manufacturers' complaint, point by point.

First, on the question of whether manufacturing corporations are being forced, under government price controls, to operate at a loss, he had this to say:

"It is significant, I think, that the boards of directors of American corporations declared a billion and a half in dividends in the final quarter of 1945—the period of economic readjustment (after the end of the war). This was just as much as they declared in the final quarter of 1944. And total dividends last year were right up to the 1944 level."

But his most devastating comment was on the point, raised by the manufacturers, that "under price control production is impossible."

"The record clearly shows that this is nonsense," he declared. "During the war, industrial and farm production under price control rose fully five times as much as in World War I. Today, production is surely at the highest point ever achieved in peacetime. Unemployment is at the lowest peacetime point in 20 years, with as many people on our pay rolls as in our best wartime year."

"What are those 52,000,000 workers doing if they are not producing?" he asked. "Why is it that industry after industry is crying for more and more employees? Why is it that reconversion has been accomplished in record time? Why is it that every business forecast indicates rapid increases in production throughout 1946? Why are retail sales continuing to higher and still higher levels—all under a program of price controls?"

Why No Profit Now? Here in a few words is the simple answer to the propaganda campaign of the National Association of Manufacturers. If manufacturers were able to produce goods at a profit under wartime price controls, why can't they do it now?

The country should be indebted to Mr. Bowles for the effective manner in which he has exploded the issue raised by the NAM. It is the issue of stabilized prices against greater private profits.

If we have to pay twice as much, without price controls, for the things we need, then our public savings have dwindled in value that much. We will have inflation. The profiteers will end up with the profits. Our whole economic structure will suffer an upheaval.

Mr. Bowles sounded a final note of warning which the country might well take heed of: "As production recovers from recent shutdowns," he said, "let's forget this propaganda talk about price controls making production impossible. Let's take off our coats, forget our differences, and get out the goods. That's the way—the only way—to get rid of price controls without the most disastrous inflation this country has ever seen."

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

Mud in North Georgia

Editor Constitution: I have been reading your articles daily in The Constitution about the conditions of the Georgia roads. All of your articles are about the roads around Atlanta. We have some very bad roads in north Georgia also.

I am a rural mail carrier in parts of Gordon county and Murray county out of the Resaca Post Office. We have 67 miles of routes and it takes from 8 a. m. until about 4 p. m. to serve this route. I have approximately six miles of my route I have had to leave off since Christmas.

The sticky red clay of Murray county has cut down so that the school bus has had to stay off the roads. Also I have been pulled through mudholes on level ground the road had cut down so much a car has to be dragged through with a tractor.

For instance, a lady died in one section of Murray county that is on my route. The body had to be hauled by a horse-drawn wagon for several miles. It was impossible to even pull the hearse through much less drive it through.

Patrons of my route have been exceptionally good in walking to designated places, I can make it to, to collect their mail. Some of them have to walk as far as four or five miles, they have to come through the woods as it is too muddy and sloppy to come the roads.

Traveling as much dirt road as I do I know your articles are completely true about the roads and I am glad your newspaper has taken steps to help get the roads improved. We really do appreciate all you can do to help get the roads improved. I am with you 100 per cent.

Resaca, Ga.

The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.

Praises 'Mud' Stories

Editor Constitution: First, allow me to congratulate you and your paper for allowing the people of Georgia to express themselves in reference to the deplorable conditions of the roads in our state. It is making your paper extremely popular in this section.

I noticed in yesterday's issue of your paper that the granite industry of Elberton was referred to as being handicapped by Highway 77. The deplorable condition of this road cannot be expressed too strongly. This is not a situation that has been caused by the recent rains although they have made the situation worse. It is a situation that has existed for years and a situation which has been continuously brought to the attention of the highway department of Georgia and the Governor of Georgia, whenever he happened to be at the time.

Last year we were threatened by the truckers who operate under contract in hauling the stone from the quarries to the sheds and they returned to work only under a direct promise, from the highway department that the situation would be corrected. They even outlined what they intended to do. We have furnished the highway department with pictures of the bridge that is out, which pictures were made last spring.

There are 16 or 17 plants that are dependent upon the five quarries that are located on these roads and again due to the condition of this road these plants are threatened with possible closure. I know you realize the importance that this industry plays in the economic structure of this city and the national reputation it is giving to our state. We believe that your publicity will bring relief and I urge you to plead our cause.

All Funds for Roads

Editor Constitution: It is indeed a distinct service that you have rendered to Georgia and especially rural Georgia during the past few days as you have depicted in a graphic way the condition of Georgia roads. The articles have pictured conditions as they exist over practically the whole state. The new post road law will greatly relieve this condition in a period of years.

There is still one matter that should be corrected, that is the diversion of the gas funds by the various counties of the state. The one cent per gallon gasoline tax is returned to the counties for road purposes, yet the total sum of $4,800,000 is used for practically every purpose than that for which it was intended. I predict that this will soon be corrected and these funds will be expended on roads. Then our children can attend school because the school bus can travel its route. The farmer can carry his produce to market, and the rural mail carrier will complete his rounds.

Let's end this continued diversion of road funds by our counties.

President Georgia Rural Letter Carriers' Association, Woodbury, Georgia.

CHICAGO—"Mrs. Lovina Warren, charged with slaying her husband, weeps bitterly in court as jury acquits her."—Cut line.

When a lady starts to cry one should never ask her why
If you're prompted to inquire what calamity so dire
Has induced the lachrymose flow to drench her pretty nose
What she answers may be true or she may be kidding you
When they play, "Here Comes the Bride," she grows tense and starry-eyed
Then she joins the sister-mob in a huge, convulsive sob
When the hero on the screen serenades the heroine,
And the deep and tender note gurgles in his manly throat,
You can hear her cries forlorn drown the noise of crunching corn.
Certainly, we don't deny there are often times to cry,
Tears that pour in honest grief often bring us sweet relief;
In a world of work and fears men sometimes resort to tears
But from babyhood to prime, women do it all the time.
Ask her . . . what's wrong, my pet? . . . and the answer you will get
Will be vague and something such as a stifled, "nothing much."
Leave it there and let it lie, she was born to have her cry
Weeping through a jillion years with her crocodilian tears.

Is Concerned About Dying

I am not afraid of dying.
It is just the manner of dying that gives me concern.
Naturally, I would prefer "waking up dead," as we used to say back in my old home town of Pueblo, which means not waking up at all, but that would preclude my leaving some scintillating words to reflect my insouciance in this morbid situation like those credited to Wilson Mizner when they lugged the oxygen tent into his room.
"Well," Bill is supposed to have said, "this looks like the main event."

THIS REMARK has probably been repeated around cafe tables often than the last words, if any, of Julius Caesar, George Washington, Patrick Henry, Plato, Mark Twain, Napoleon, Lord Nelson, Hannibal or any other imposing character of history, though Mizner was but a wastrel who was inclined to glorify the art of "Mc-Gooping," an expression you will have to ask your Uncle George to define, children.

He had a quick brain and a nimble tongue and his spoken words in the form of cruelly witty remarks have been repeated over and over and appropriated by others, though his published contributions to posterity consist of a good short story, some lines in plays in collaboration with Paul Armstrong, a letter as a native son of the golden west on the invasion of California by Iowans, and an application for membership in the Friars Club.

I IMAGINE that a few yellowing pages of the last two documents are preserved by old timers in tattered scrapbooks. I cannot remember any of the text now, but I do remember that I once thought them quite funny. Maybe they would not sound so amusing now like some of the racial wisecracks for which Bill was noted and that once drew laughs, but would now be deemed in dreadfully bad taste and get him many a bust in the nose.

I am sure that Bill had no racial prejudices and that he used race merely to point up his cracks. I am equally sure, however, that they would not go now. His numerous disciples used to try to imitate him and I remember that one of them, a prominent vaudeville actor of the day, was expelled from the Friars Club for a most inhuman comment on the funeral of the victims of the Triangle fire.

I DOUBT that when I exit it will be on a line as pat as that of Bill's, though maybe some of my friends will quickly think up something picturesque and stirring for me as is often done on these sad occasions. I know that investigation has developed that many famous last words were not actually uttered by the departing characters to whom they have been attributed though personally I consider such probings uncalled-for.
I mean I think a man is entitled

Passes Along One Of Eleanor's Recipes

One of the nice things about a super-abundance of adipose tissue is that the possessor of it invariably meets up with the very best eating, in whatever section of the land he may happen to be. Kind old ladies want nothing better than to get his feet under their tables and to set before him the best of everything they possess in the way of proven, duly cooked in their very best manner.

Even the professional cooks are putty in the hands of a nice eater. Their faces light up as such a one walks placidly through the big kitchen, and by the time he has reached the far end, one of them will have discovered that there are four succulent chops left from the loin, or that the storeroom has just sent up the best pompano they have had in weeks. This spirit even extends to the waiters; white or black, female or male. They may be fumbling around and muttering to themselves while they go on with the never-ending wiping of the table, but when the "nice appetite" appears, they know it and look up instinctively, give out a grin, and immediately set about trying to improve his condition.

AT HOME it is the same way. Those charged with the duty of decorating the dining room table with the mostest of the bestest for the leastest, hover over the kitchen in prayerful attitude all through the day, rearing up in prospect the happy return of the "appetite" at the close of the day, and the look of glowing anticipation as he raises the lids of pots and skillets and exclaims over their contents. Yes, life is sweet for the Edgar Dunlops, the Bentley Chappells, the Fred Wilsons, the Homer Edenfields, the Ralph McGills and the Channing Copes of the world.

DOWN HERE on Cumberland Island, the situation is no different. Eleanor, the chief cook, for all of her travel and knowing ways, is as easy a victim as is her own Susie, at Yellow River. Normally, the doors leading from

Is Standing By For Spring

(Editor's Note: Leodel Coleman, who recently returned from many months' service in the Marine Corps, is editor of the Bulloch Herald, from which paper the following is reprinted.)

To most of you who did not get out of Bulloch county and Georgia the last several years this spring will be just another season. Just another other time of the year in which to clean house. The time of year to worry about the children's colds. And what to do about buying a new spring dress. Junior's thoughts turn lightly to things not found in his algebra book. And dad begins to figure how to make last year's fishing tackle do this year.

Just another spring for you.

BUT TO US who spent the last several years in the Pacific, it's going to be more than just another spring. It's going to be spring. The spring of Longfellow, coming "with a rush of blossoms and music, flooding the earth with flowers and the air with melodies vernal."

It's going to be wonderful.

We have not seen spring in Bulloch county in three years. March winds, April rains, the softness in the air and the lengthening of the days; plum trees and pear trees blooming; are things you can't seal up in an envelope and send to Bougainville, Guadalcanal, Gunn, Saipan.

We're standing by waiting for spring.

We're standing by to catch up on the springs we've missed. Springs lost to us in the Pacific where there is never spring . . . never winter . . . never fall. Just eternal rain, heat and sun,

WESTBROOK PEGLER

The Honesty Of Mr. Ickes

Throughout his career in the cabinet, there were many Americans who thought that the title of Honest Harold, bestowed on Mr. Ickes with sarcastic intent, was a gross exaggeration. Originally it referred to his suspicious nature which instinctively examined the motives of others.

"Honest Harold" implied full recognition of the probability that there was one New Dealer who would not tap the till or drain off secret graft in one guise or another either for his personal gain or that of his sisters and his cousins and his aunts. In this commonplace virtue there was a side-long criticism of the morals and ethics of his chief but it will be noted that Mr. Ickes' honesty was not so active as to evoke from him any public objection to such violations of his own code by his political betters. That a public servant be innocent of the larcenous instinct or that he resist it firmly would seem to be little enough to ask. But the personal fortunes of some who led the Roosevelt revolution show that it is not only a lot to expect of them but much too much.

MR. ICKES leaves public office, but not the public eye and ear, self-styled, a grasping and miserly fellow and with no dissenting opinion from those who know him best. But his most enthusiastic enemy will not allege that he got a dollar of his fortune illegally. To that extent, then, he is indeed "Honest Harold" but that is faint praise.

Honesty means more than that and other tests Ickes failed. In the second New Deal, Mr. Ickes toyed with a temptation to return to Chicago and run for mayor against Ed Kelly, whom he plausibly regarded as a rascal in need of turning out. He was not a resident of Chicago in any publicly known sense of the term.

HE ACTUALLY resided in the suburbs of Washington and his only other registered home was on a street called, in his biography in Who's Who, "Private Road, Winnetka, Ill.," yet Mr. Ickes said he believed he could establish a fine legal residence in Chicago. His plans changed and he was not called on to prove domicile but the Kelly politicians naturally went searching and their conclusion was that Ickes had a vague technical claim to legal but fictitious residence in a room up near the eaves of an old hotel near the Loop.

By 1940, Ickes had either changed his opinion of Ed Kelly or was stooping to conquer. At the height of that stupendously grand brawl which nominated Mr. Roosevelt for his third term and Henry Wallace, amid boos, for his first in any elective office, Ickes was caught in flagrant association with the man he had so recently and ardently despised. He and Harry Hopkins who, to his credit, wisely never made an issue of his honesty, turned up in the company of not only Mr. Kelly, but that other despicable Fascist, according to the New Deal Billingsgate of the time, Frank Hague, of Jersey City. The purpose of their huddle was not reform or civic virtue but the low, practical politics of the old-time smoke-filled room. They didn't get along without the rascals and their wicked machines so, in that moral crisis, they decided to get along with them and turn to their own political service the very wickedness which they deplored.

HAVING HIS own Gestapo in the Department of the Interior, Mr. Ickes cannot be presumed to have been ignorant of the $25,000 bite to which Judge Charles Harwood submitted in a rush act by Hall Roosevelt, the brother of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, acting on behalf of Elliott and his radio chain. Ickes knows more scandal and gossip than any other one in Washington. Yet when the President named Harwood governor of the Virgin Islands, under the general management of Mr. Ickes, and even after the facts of the bite were presented in print, his honesty did not move him to repudiate the whole affair. In so doing he would have reflected on his late leader, the preservation of whose reputation, as we have been seeing, is more important than all considerations of virtue and decency in public affairs.

Mr. Ickes' own participation in the distribution of philatelic monstrosities of great value was in accordance with the new ethics of high office. No man can say he got a dishonest dollar there in the sense of illegal doing but he knew the value of such stamps and so his conduct will be called honest only by those who share his principles.

MR. ICKES HAS always been a stout man in the fight for labor's gains, including the protection of the so-called common man from impudence and all manner of personal imposition by the bosses. Yet, like Fiorello La Guardia, another honest man, in the same restricted sense, he was an overbearing executive in the Department of the Interior whose manners and methods in his relations with individuals who couldn't fight back would have had him up on serious charges before Labor Relations Board had he used them in private industry.

Mr. Truman probably will be relieved to be rid of him once the noise subsides. The party is separating into its two natural divisions now and Ickes obviously belongs with Wallace, Hillman, Frankfurter and the few shameless fakery in the senate who never had any principles and spoke pieces written for them by the left wing strictly for the sake of their jobs and invitations to parties in Washington. The Republicans might even think of nominating John L. Lewis in 1948 as a man to beat Wallace and his Communist following, counting Truman out in advance.

HAROLD MARTIN

The Road News Is Not All Good

Back home, thank the Lord, after a two-week trip, I found a big stack of mail—most of it dealing with the road situation. It came from people all over this part of Georgia, and much of it was written before the state had come with its plan to spend some money on its roads right now, and to give the counties a million dollars a month to get their roads fixed up. Much of it, though, was written after the state had announced its plans, saying, generally, "Hooray! Now let's see that they carry out their promises," and expressing the hope that maybe we were going to get things done.

There was one letter which discouraged me a little, though, and I pass it on here just so that we don't expect too much, too soon. Most of the people who wrote me figured that plenty of crushed rock was the answer, and I figured that was probably the truth, but I learn now, from a man who ought to know, that crushed rock costs a lot of money—more money than will be available to the counties even under the expanded program.

Here is what Julius McCurdy Jr., counsel for the Association of County Commissioners of Georgia, has to say. . . . "When we talk about putting rock on roads the people ought to know what it costs. Did you know that in DeKalb county, which has more rock closer to its roads than any other county, it costs $5,745 25 to spread six inches of stone over a mile of 20-foot road? In six months most of this stone would be gone unless it was stabilized. It would cost approximately $1,163.40 to choke and roll this stone and prime it. To complete the job with an asphalt top would cost another $3,900, or a total cost for a hard-surfaced road of $10,808.65 per mile."

Too Much Money Well, anybody with any sense knows that the Georgia counties, with 100,000 miles of dirt roads to keep up, can't spend $10,000 a mile to hard-surface them. They can't spend $5,000 a mile to gravel them six inches deep. That's 500 million dollars. There isn't that kind of money available, and there won't be (though I was surprised to read in many letters that the people were willing to pay higher taxes, or to support heavy bond issues, to do nearly anything, to get out of the mud.) So we can't expect a black-top road or a graveled road, leading past every man's house, now or any time in the near future.

But we can expect a lot of things to be done that haven't been done, things that don't cost so much. Such as clearing out the ditches so the roads will drain off faster after a rain, and filling in the bad spots with rock. Generally it is only one or two spots on a road that stops traffic anyway. Nobody who lives in a town knows what wonderful mud-roads drivers farmers are, or the fellow who drives the pulpwood truck, or the school bus, or carries the mail. They can get over roads that would scare a city driver to death. But they can't drive through a hog-wallow where the car goes down so deep the wheels can't get traction. And they can't make it over a broken-down bridge that won't carry the load.

Let Us Hear From You So we at least have got to do that much. We've got to get the worst spots fixed, during the summer, and see that they stay fixed. And we've got to get the bridges fixed.

About the only thing folks can do now, as I see it, is to keep after the state, and the county commissioners, to do everything they can with what money they have available. The state said that with good weather they'd have 2,000 miles of state roads passable within a month. That was two weeks ago. The weather has been good since. I'd like to know how they are coming along.

There's no use keeping the road issue burning day after day, if the state and counties ARE getting behind the problem. But the Constitution would like to get a sort of "progress report" from folks out in the counties every two weeks or so, so that the paper can print a story periodically about what each county is doing, and which ones are trying to do something, and which ones are not. If we carried that along on through the summer, and up into the fall, folks would pretty well know then whether or not they were going to have to spend another winter cut off from the world by the mud.

TOM STOKES

Ferment In the South

ATLANTA.—There's something about a southern train, lazily along through the rolling piedmont country.

It stops and starts nonchalantly and grows drowsy with soft, southern voices.

THE TRAIN is carrying car after car of soldiers returning home after many long months in Europe. They are bound for Fort McPherson, here in Atlanta, to be discharged.

THEIR TALK is interesting . . . the grim weather in England . . . comments about the English people . . . they don't seem to have much push, take things as they are . . . seems like they're only two kinds of people there . . . very rich, very poor . . . not like here . . . those folks can have Europe, don't ever want to see it again.

They are glad to get back home. But there are questions in their minds. They've seen the world—the hard way. They love this country here. It's home. They see it as they remembered it, kindly sun-blessed, and it looks good.

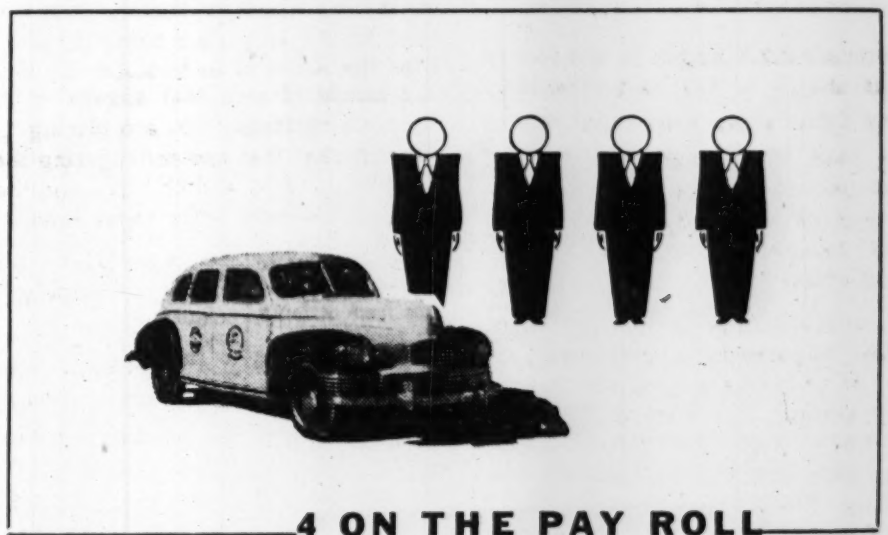

A NORTHERN TRAVELER aboard who is visiting the south for the first time looks out the window and sees it differently—unpainted shacks, tumble-down houses, hanging precariously to the earth, the pine trees behind. Will these returning soldiers get to see that and do something about it, or will they accept it, as so many do, as "a way of life" that must not be changed.

Then after you get off the train, you talk to people and you find the south is in a ferment, arguing over itself. The shadow of a dead man by the name of Roosevelt still hangs over this land. He started something. Some people, those who resist change, thought his successor, Truman, was going to quit bothering about all that stuff. "He started out fine. We thought he was going to be different."

BUT OTHER PEOPLE come to you, quietly, and say some of those men in congress don't truly represent the south. "Things have got to be changed. We know that. The Negroes and the poor whites have got to have a better break." The people of the south are a long way ahead of the politicians.

There is something stirring in the south. All the voices tell you that. A guilty conscience is arguing with itself.

4 ON THE PAY ROLL

FOR EVERY YELLOW CAB ON THE STREET

MOST riders think of a taxicab operation as consisting of cabs and drivers only. They do not realize that for each driver and Yellow Cab on the street there are three more people on the pay roll—each one doing a definite job.

To begin with, Yellow Cabs run all day and all night, and the drivers work only 8 hours. This is a safety measure, because a tired man cannot be a safe driver.

That accounts for about 2 1/4 of the men per cab.

The other 1 1/4 people are on maintenance, dispatching, and other activities related to keeping the cabs and the service up to par

To show how vital maintenance is—nearly one-third of taxicabs are in the shop for repair all of the time, even in normal times. During the war, of course, the percentage was higher.

But the war is over. We have doubled our fleet since VJ Day. 134 of our veterans are back, behind the wheel and in the shops. So we can, once more, confidently ask you to call Walnut 0200, and expect Yellow Cab Service.

ing in rubber reclamation plants throughout the country.

Jack J. Barkhaus, general manager of the rubber company, said he heard the explosion among the barrels of rubber cement and then discovered the fire. The flames, he said, gained headway while he was trying to telephone to the fire department. Meanwhile, other employees were trying to put out the fire with buckets of water.

During the fire, six firemen received minor injuries and went to Grady hospital for treatment. They are: Raymond P. Pierce, with an injured hand; Ralph Ellington, with a leg laceration; Charles Ragsdale, with a bruise on the neck; H. J. Ivy, with a slight burn; Joe W. Flynn, hand cut; Hubert Knight, foot mashed.

Firemen received the first alarm at 4:30 p. m. and it was 7 p. m. before they got the fire under adequate control. It was some hours later before they permitted traffic on the railroad lines near by.

Jack Zwerner, president of the Holfast Rubber Company, walked out of his office at 1486 Lakewood avenue, S. E., yesterday afternoon to note a great column of black smoke billowing across the downtown sky.

"That," said Zwerner, "is a rubber fire. I can tell by the smoke."

It was. It was his son's establishment downtown, and the smoke was caused by a lot of rubber and rubber products belonging not only to his son, Herbert's Dixie Rubber Products Company, but to the senior Zwerner's own Globe Supply Company and Manhattan Coil Company.

Spectators collected on the Magnolia street viaduct and watched the fire in mute fascination fully five minutes before a fire alarm was turned in, but almost immediately afterward they were driven from their lookout by heavy

After the Magnolia street viaduct, directly overlooking the fire, became too hot for comfort, great throngs of pedestrians gathered on the Spring street viaduct for a grandstand view of the blaze.

THE TALL PILLAR OF SMOKE—This huge mass of smoke, seen as far away as Buford, rises from the fire in the plant of the Dixie Rubber Products Company, near the Magnolia street viaduct. Note how the pillar of smoke dwarfs the nearby brick warehouse.

SIDELIGHTS FROM THE FIRE

Smoke Pillar Soars to 3,500 Feet

"It looked like a heavy cloud, and we were beginning to think we were in for a storm," a Buford policeman, on duty in the leather city, some 40 miles from Atlanta, told a Constitution reporter. "That column extended up 3,500 feet," a pilot who passed over Atlanta said. "I had to go up that high to get above it, and I know, I once tried to go through the smoke, but it was too thick for me. At 3,500 feet, the smoke hit a strong breeze which took it off in the direction of Buford, and I am not surprised they saw it up there."

One of the heavy losers in the fire is an ex-GI, for the owner of the Dixie Rubber Products Company plant which went up in flames along with its huge stockpile of rubber tires, was Herbert Zwerner, 21, who just got out of uniform last October. Zwerner, who lives at 1109 Piedmont avenue, N. E., served in England. Europe and the Balkans as an armorer on P-47 fighter planes, before he returned to civilian life.

Trains coming into the Union Passenger station today are liable to be a few minutes late on reaching their destination, as a result of the dangerous condition of the fire-damaged building occupied by the Dixie Rubber Products Company and the Continental Gin Company.

Officials at the Union station pointed out that the trains will have to switch around in order to stay clear of the dangerous wall. The main tracks are within a few feet of the building.

Trains will leave the Union station on time, but they will probably be delayed in the yard by switching.

The firemen had a lively water battle to put a touch of humor in the grim business of extinguishing stubborn flames which swept through the Continental Gin Company and the Dixie Rubber Products Company yesterday.

As the firemen scrambled about on the huge concrete loading platform to put out flames among the stacks of burning auto tires, strong winds swept blankets of smoke about them. Occasionally, a blinded fireman would send a high-powered stream of water squarely into the back of a fellow worker, sending him sprawling. The only means the victim had of giving out his exact position amid all the din was to spray back a stream of water.

That immense column of smoke which billowed up into the sky from the fire not only attracted the attention of Atlantans, but had people in Buckhead and at the Atlanta Naval Air Base, some 12 miles away, speculating as to what was on fire.

At the naval station, there was considerable speculation as to where the fire was.

The entire personnel attempted to locate the origin of the blaze, but the nearest guess was more than a mile off.

Fire fighting equipment returning from the fire to headquarters to obtain additional supplies, had to take its place in the line of traffic along Forsyth street.

The fire broke out just before traffic reached its peak yesterday afternoon, and it was essential that some of the trucks return to fire stations for additional hose and other equipment.

Although their sirens were blowing full blast the traffic was flowing in three and four columns, and it was impossible for any of the traffic to move out of the way of the fire trucks, while traffic policemen stationed at intersections endeavored to clear a path for the fire trucks.

Eighty per-cent of the world's supply of carbon black used in making printer's ink, automobile tires and other commodities is being produced.

International trade is flourishing through its border gateways.

Today—look at a Santa Fe freight rolling out of the Panhandle or West Texas. You'll find cattle cars, wheat cars, tank cars, coal cars, helium cars and cars filled with synthetic rubber, cotton, wool, turkeys, pecans and other important products.

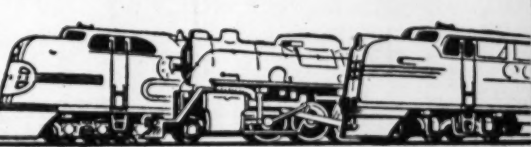

Yes, there's plenty doin' in the Panhandle and West Texas these days!

SANTA FE LINES IN TEXAS

Santa Fe, a Texas partner and booster since 1880, and operating 3,693 miles of rail in Texas, provides rail service between the Lone Star State and Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and California.

VIEWING THE FIRE—Thousands of Atlanta office workers got a grandstand seat at the spectacular fire by merely walking up onto the Spring street viaduct. From that point, the blaze was less than two blocks away. The throng remained for several hours while firemen battled the big blaze, the most spectacular in months.

A Statement about the motion picture "Scarlet Street"

There has been much printed and much said about the banning of the motion picture "Scarlet Street" by the unwarranted action of the Atlanta Censor.

It is to be regretted that the banning has added a sensationalism to the character of this picture in Atlanta, especially since "Scarlet Street" reflects a serious dramatic theme and presents its thesis with a dignity and propriety commensurate with the importance of the subject matter.

The people of Atlanta should know that Scarlet Street was produced by persons of excellent and established reputation and is being distributed by Universal, a company which has to its credit thirty-five years of business prestige.

No one connected with either the production of Scarlet Street or its distribution to theatres of the world can benefit by any sensationalism nor does any one of these persons have any desire to capitalize upon sensationalism.

Universal Film Exchanges, Inc. has inserted this advertisement in the spirit of fair play and with the hope that the facts will speak for themselves.

The people of Atlanta should know:

(1) Scarlet Street has been exhibited in approximately 200 representative cities throughout the country and has been seen by approximately five million persons.

(2) Has met the censorship requirements of those states that have censorship boards including the states of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Florida, Kansas, Massachusetts.

(3) Has been exhibited in a cross section of the country in cities which have local censorship boards such as Memphis, Boston, Providence, Kansas City, Mo., Washington, D. C., Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle.

In addition to Memphis, these other Southern cities have seen Scarlet Street: Greenville, Hattiesburg, Meridian, Gulfport, in Mississippi; Miami, Pensacola, St. Petersburg, in Florida; Richmond, Norfolk, Petersburg, in Virginia; Mobile, in Alabama; Alexandria, in Louisiana; Charleston, S. C.; Jackson, Tennessee; Ft. Smith, Little Rock, in Arkansas; San Antonio, Houston, Wichita Falls, Dallas, Abilene, Amarillo, Ft. Worth, Galveston, Austin, El Paso, in Texas.

These engagements were typified by record breaking attendance resulting from the natural appeal of the picture and without any unusual uproar occasioned by action such as the type of publicity resulting from the ban in Atlanta.

It is fair to state that every type of motion picture patron has seen Scarlet Street in every type of community, whether it be small town or large city. The press in these cities has been enthusiastic in its critical comment and endorsement of Scarlet Street. We think the people of Atlanta should read some of these comments.

The New York Times, through Bosley Crowther, says:

"'Scarlet Street' is a painfully moral picture, and in the light of modern candor, rather tame."

The New York World-Telegram, through Alton Cook, says:

"'Scarlet Street' is for adults, and it will leave them full of enthusiasm for what a good movie can do to an audience. This is the good kind of melodrama, baffling, breathtaking and evil. All the way through, this is such a good picture, you wonder why the censors dared monkey."

The Boston Traveler says:

"From where we sat we could see nothing to incite immorality in the sordid happenings of this splendidly produced photoplay."

The New York Post, through Archer Winsten, says:

"What's certain is that a lot of people are going to see 'Scarlet Street' and nobody will be morally impaired by the experience. Not if 'the wages of sin is death' still rates as a moral saying."

The Spokane Spokesman-Review, through Margaret Bean, says:

"'Scarlet Street' shouts a sermon!"

The Washington Times-Herald, through Betty Hynes, says:

"Certainly this picture unreels a segment of life a lot of people would rather believe does not exist, but it is there just the same and all the more dangerous when it is covered up and ignored. And the story treatment is in the classic tradition that rewards evil with death and suffering. . . . In other words, 'Scarlet Street' is a thoroughly moral film drama."

The Memphis Commercial Appeal, through Mike McGee, says:

"We found the shock content of 'Scarlet Street' practically nil."

The New York Herald Tribune, through Howard Barnes, says:

"It is rather absurd that 'Scarlet Street' had to go over the censorship hurdles recently. It is as moral as a Jeremiad. It makes its physical and spiritually melodramatic points with sense and considerable artistry."

The Hartford Times, through John Crocket, says:

"'Scarlet Street' is an excellent movie which substitutes for the Victorian finger-waving 'crime does not pay' ending, one of dramatic, literary and life-like realism with its many extreme subtleties. It will no doubt be voted one of the year's best."

The Chicago Herald-American, through Ann Marsters, says:

"If you think Robinson pays for his crime in conventional manner with the law catching up to him, you are quite wrong. And herein lies the most unusual part of the picture. It has the most intelligent ending we have ever seen in this type of melodrama."

The Cincinnati Times Star, through Groverman Blake, says:

"'Scarlet Street' is a potent melodrama in which sin, astonishingly outspoken and rampant for the films, receives one of the most severe and violent set-backs I can recall it ever having suffered on the screen."

The Cincinnati Enquirer, through E. B. Radcliffe, says:

"This picture adds another raw slice of life to the screen's swiftly growing library of realism."

The Boston Globe says:

"'Scarlet Street' does not make evil in any way attractive. It is sordid, cruel and mean."

The Detroit News, through Al Weitschat, says:

"'Scarlet Street' is a sordid tale, but done with a realism which has a consistent, straight-from-the-shoulder fascination."

The Detroit Times, through Charles Gentry, says:

"It's an expert drama, based on a darn good story."

The Galveston Tribune says:

"'Scarlet Street' is an outstanding cinema event in every respect."

WHY can cities in the South, West, East and North see "Scarlet Street" and Atlanta cannot have this privilege?

This is what happened when we sought a permit to exhibit the picture:

(1) A single censor rejected the picture.

(2) On review of this arbitrary decision by the entire board, four members cast votes which approved of the picture's exhibition and three members voted to sustain the censor. Thereupon, the chairman insisted upon casting a ballot to sustain the censor, thus creating a tie vote.

(3) The City Attorney's office ruled that the tie vote was insufficient to grant a permit to show the picture.

There are no finer men in the City of Atlanta than the four members of the Board of Censors who voted for the picture's exhibition.

We believe that "Scarlet Street" is an artistic picture worthy of any screen in the City of Atlanta and we also believe that its banning is wholly unwarranted and improperly ordered.

We submit that the promiscuous comments and opinions expressed by persons who have not seen the picture are presumptuous. Without viewing the picture it cannot be judged.

Actually, the basic question is whether the people of Atlanta are entitled to see this picture and to form their own conclusions in regard to the quality of "Scarlet Street."

The sharp division of the Censor Board is the best evidence that "Scarlet Street," in the opinion of representative persons, has merit.

The entire incident is unfair to the producers of the motion picture, its distributor and to the citizens of Atlanta.

We regret that our only recourse is to present the facts to the courts of the State of Georgia.

This we propose to do promptly.

Secret Poll Gives Pauley Slim Chance

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(UP)—A secret poll by Republican senators indicates that Edwin W. Pauley will fail to be confirmed as Undersecretary of the Navy by at least four votes, a high congressional source said Monday night. He said that some of those opposed were still doubtful and that their final decision may increase the margin of defeat.

Few of the chamber's 39 Republicans are believed to favor Pauley, and with two leading Democrats—Sens. Tom Stewart, of Tennessee, and Claude Pepper, Florida—now on record opposed to him, Pauley's chances appeared slim.

Escape Gives Up; 2 Suspects Held; Another Captured

William Pepper, 17, one of the prisoners who escaped from Fulton county's South Camp Prison Sunday night has surrendered at Fulton county jail, while two young men, suspected of being among the 10 who escaped, are being held at Athens pending investigation and possible identification.

Another one of the prisoners, Harry Louis Nelson, was captured yesterday morning, while Pepper surrendered late last night.

Fulton county police do not yet know if the two men at Athens are among those they are seeking. The Athens police have sent fingerprints to aid in identifying them.

Police in Athens arrested the pair early yesterday in a freight car in the yards there. They gave the names of S. B. Reed, 16, and Leroy Shaw, 19, both of Atlanta. At the time both wore khaki.

C. E. Mitchell, chief of the Fulton county police, says that the uniform of the county prisoners is khaki with a "CP" (county prisoner) identification mark sewed on the back of each uniform. There was no such mark on the clothing of the men arrested in Athens.

Police here have no trace of the other men who escaped from the camp. Nelson was serving a six-month term for malicious mischief.

Turner Jones Jr., Portland Belle To Wed in March

PORTLAND, Maine.—Of interest to fashionable society in the south and New England is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. John Woolley Oakley, of this city, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ann Oakley, to Turner Jones Jr., the marriage to take place in March.

Miss Oakley attended the Wyn-flete school, in Portland, and Miss Gill's School, in Bernardville, N. J. She is a popular member of the Portland Junior League.

Mr. Jones is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Turner Jones, also of Portland, former prominent residents of Atlanta, Ga. He is the grandson of Dr. and Mrs. M. Ashby Jones, of Atlanta, the former being a distinguished and beloved Baptist minister. The groom-elect graduated from Deering High school, in Portland, and was a student at the University of Virginia before entering the Army. He served in the Pacific theater of operations.

Miss Hartley To Wed Mr. Sale

Enlisting social interest in Georgia and Florida is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hartley, of Metter, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Videtta Mae Hartley, to Stanley Alexander Sale, of Jacksonville, Fla., and Atlanta. The marriage will be an event of March 10 at the chapel of the First Baptist church at 4 o'clock, with Dr. James W. Middleton and the Rev. Joseph E. Abstance officiating.

The bride-elect is the third daughter of her parents, her mother being the former, Miss Hattie Mae Johnson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James E. Johnson, of Williston, S. C. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hartley, of Pulaski.

Mr. Sale is the eldest son of Mrs. Lula E. Sale and the late John A. Sale, of Jacksonville.

Miss Hartley attended Bessie Tift College. Later she enrolled in the Crawford W. Long school of nursing in Atlanta. She served as president of the Baptist Student Union during her training at Crawford Long. Her senior cadet period was spent in Gainesville, where she did public health nursing in the Hall County Public Health Department. Since her graduation in March, 1943, Miss Hartley has been working as a staff nurse at Veterans' Hospital No. 48.

Mr. Sale attended Georgia School of Technology prior to enlisting in the Navy in October, 1942. While at Tech he was an active member of the Baptist Student Union and a member of the glee club.

The groom-elect was recently discharged from naval service after serving as aviation electrician's mate. He was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands.

After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Jacksonville.

Miss Wilma Pitts Marries Mr. Hooper

THOMASTON, Ga.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert James Pitts announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Miss Wilma Pitts, of Atlanta, to Lewis Cline Hooper, of Atlanta, son of Lee Hooper and the late Mrs. Nellie S. Hooper, of Sylvia, N. C. The ceremony was held at St. Mark Methodist church with the Rev. Lester Rumble officiating.

The bride was attended by the groom's only sister, Mrs. Mildred H. Crout. She wore a green suit with brown accessories and white carnations. Roy Clark, of Flowery Branch and Atlanta, acted as best man.

The bride chose for her wedding a powder blue suit with black accessories. Her flowers were gardenias.

Mrs. Hooper received her education at the schools in Thomaston and after serving several months with the War Department in Macon and Miami, she transferred to the State Highway Department in Atlanta.

The groom attended Georgia Tech and since his return from Guatemala last fall, he has been connected with the State Highway Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooper will reside at 908 Juniper street, apartment 23, in Atlanta.

Miss Sams, Fiance Honored at Parties

Miss Frances Jeanette Sams, whose marriage to Joseph Lamar Faulkner, both of College Park, which will be an event of March 2, is being honored at numerous pre-nuptial parties.

Friday evening Mrs. Joe Faulkner, mother of the groom-elect, will entertain for the members of the bridal party at her home on West Cambridge, the affair will follow the wedding rehearsal.

Mrs. Peniston Smith and Mrs. John Routso were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower recently for the bride-elect at the home of Mrs. Routso on West Cambridge avenue. J. H. Longino entertained the bridal couple at a dinner dance and among other parties given for the bride-elect was the tea given by members of the rate department of the Southern railway, and a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. John Proctor on West Mercer avenue in College Park.

Mrs. C. P. Stephenson, of College Park, entertained the bride-elect at a luncheon at the Paradise room.

LOUELLA PARSONS REPORTS:

Gary Cooper To Film 'State of the Union'

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25.—(INS)—When a movie company starts casting a picture 18 months before it can be made, that's looking into the future. Well, just before Gary and Roccio Cooper took themselves out of town for a skiing engagement, Gary crossed his heart and promised to do "State of the Union" for Paramount in 1947, provided he still has his health, looks and interest in movies.

MGM is excited about bringing Tom Helmore to Hollywood. They have him tabbed as the next top drawer star. Me? I didn't know Mr. Helmore from Adam until I started digging for a few facts. He is a former star of the London stage and screen who has been making a big hit in New York in "The Day Before Spring." In 1939 he took a flyer to this country to do "No Time for Comedy" with Katherine Cornell. He'll be introduced to movie fans in his stage hit, "The Day Before Spring," on account of L. B. Mayer has bought it for an Arthur Hornblower production.

Before the war almost every film company was trying to lure Jean Gabin to Hollywood to make pictures. He was offered fabulous salaries but money didn't tempt him. He liked his native France. But everything is changed since the war and Jean is now at the Wedgewood room in New York. I am told Paramount has opened negotiations with him for a remake of those charming Maurice Chevalier vehicles. We can do with a little of that type of light comedy.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The battle that took Betty Hutton and Ted Briskin into the headlines last week brings up again the question whether a happy marriage is possible between an actress and a man completely detached from this fabulous business of ours. With Betty, her career will always be No. 1. She's an actress and has worked since she was 10 years old to get where she is. Ted, who is a fine person, good looking and rich, and madly in love with Betty, finds it difficult to understand that a picture is making a picture is not possible for her to have another thought in the world.

Eve Arden doesn't have to worry about her future on the screen. Although her contract has two years to go she's had her option lifted at Warner's and given a new contract. "Mildred Pierce" did this for her just as it gave Ann Blyth, and, of course, Joan Crawford, complete new careers. Joan Crawford's friends are working like mad for her on the Academy Awards because in all the year's she's been an actress she never before has been nominated.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: The gal who is keeping Sabu up these nights is Helene Neilson, a cousin of Veronica Lake. Cass Daley sold her stamp collection for $15,000 and will use the money to buy more property in San Fernando valley. Victor Mature has been having dates in Las Vegas with Mrs. John Rogers, who is there to get a divorce from Charles Rogers' son.

Something New for Munching: A new product which promises to join the ranks of potato chips, peanuts and other tid-bits you "can't stop eating," is a thin, fried corn chip. Derived from a whole corn kernel, the product passes through several processes until a thick corn meal mush emerges. This is rolled thin, then fried in hot fat. A small, curled, crisp chip is the final result. It is called by the Spanish name "Fritos," which means "fried." You pronounce it "free-toes." This corn chip will be a welcome addition to the cocktail or the hors d'oeuvres tray. Mrs. R. E. Gervens is seen arranging the new corn chip on the bridge table.

Farm Bloc Would Hike Lunch Fund

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The potent senate farm bloc lined up Monday behind a $115,000,000-a-year federal school lunch program, more than double the amount voted by the house last week.

Sens. Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, and Russell, Democrat, Georgia, said they will seek action Tuesday on a measure already approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

They and Sens. Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, Aiken, Republican, Vermont, and Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, told newsmen there is no doubt about senate approval although there may be some opposition from economy advocates.

Sen. Taft, Republican, Ohio, told a reporter he may oppose the school lunch authorization "because I'm against it in principle. It is a program to provide lunches for everyone, rich or poor, whether needed or not."

But Aiken, another Republican, said in an interview:

"A lot of senators regarded the federal school lunch program as communistic when it first started in 1935. It's proved such a success that it's not even pink now."

The senate measure would authorize $100,000,000 annually for food buying. Of this the secretary of agriculture could use $25,000,000 to buy surplus foods; the balance would be matched by states on a dollar for dollar basis for the first five years.

After five years the state share would increase to $150 for each federal dollar and at the end of 10 years the states would supply $3 for each treasury dollar.

Another $15,000,000 would be authorized annually for nutritional education or facilities needed for the lunch program.

The house eliminated this $15,000,000 program, reduced the food buying to $50,000,000 and provided for a quicker increase in state matching funds.

Farm-minded senators said they plan to substitute the entire senate bill for the one approved by the house. This would allow a senate-house conference committee to work out a compromise later.

Red Cross Fund

MACON, Feb. 25.—Eden Taylor Jr., Macon civic leader, has called upon the public to "give liberally" to the Red Cross fund drive that opens this week. Macon's chapter quota is $95,000, of which $61,000 is budgeted for home service, the department giving aid to veterans and their families.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"Okay, bud—Hand over the day's losses!"

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Don't Barge In on Girl; Make Your Date Definite

You're one of those guys who goes in for psychic dates. You make no plans far ahead . . . not you. You have dates only when the spirit moves you. And it moves you at the funniest times.

Maybe things get a little dull around your house . . . so you think you may as well go out. You slick down your hair . . . adjust your tie . . . and sally forth to descend upon some girl. You don't bother to give her a buzz to see if she's home and free to see you. No . . . you just barge around, pound on her bell . . . and gallop in with a smile on your face.

SHE MAY BE GLAD TO SEE YOU

She may greet you with a smile and a bid of welcome. Or she may catch her breath and think to herself "what will I do with him now?" Maybe she already has a date and is expecting him any moment. She's a bit shy about telling you to run along . . . 'cause you just don't fit into her plans at all. She's afraid you'll walk out . . . never to walk in again.

It may be the wrong time of day entirely for a date with you. Some boys are ready to date their girls before breakfast. But some girls like to sleep late. They hate to be awakened by the doorbell while the rest of the house is asleep . . . then have to fly into their clothes, splash the face with cold water and lipstick . . . and meet you out of puff at the door with a hearty welcome. You're not welcome at all.

Maybe your girl was just about to do something mighty important, like write letters, finish her murder mystery or get her scrapbook up to date. She was all set . . . in the mood . . . when you walk to monopolize her time and energy. Girls do have other things to do sometimes. They're not always as happy as they look about dropping everything to make light converse with you.

No . . . there are definitely times when girls would be happier about you if you wouldn't show up.

YOU CAN ORGANIZE YOURSELF

You say that you never know when you can have a date . . . or want one. You couldn't keep any engagement. Maybe you wouldn't want to when the time came. So you operate on the spur of the minute.

And that's all well and good. But your spur-of-the-minute dates can be pretty dismal for a girl. A girl likes to have a little warning. She likes to look forward. And there's no chance for that if the bell rings and there you are.

All it takes is a little organization. You can prompt that spirit to move you in time to give Nellie a buzz. Ask if you can drop in. At least call for from around the corner to see if it'll be convenient. But don't go barging in . . . where angels fear to tread!

If something is getting you down . . . spill it in a letter to ELIZABETH WOODWARD . . . she'll be glad to help you. Write her in care of The Atlanta Constitution . . . and inclose a stamped and addressed envelope.

China Unifies Red, Government Armies

CHUNGKING, Feb. 25.—(AP)—China consolidated her government and Communist armies Monday into a single national defense force, which in turn is to be progressively reduced to 60 divisions of about 850,000 men within 18 months.

Not in 4,000 years of recorded history has China enjoyed a single armed force free of the whims and intrigues of warlords and politicians, and belonging solely to the state as a whole.

Gen. Marshall, special American envoy who was a prime mover in the unification program, was one of the three signers to the consolidation agreement, declared as he put away his fountain pen: "This agreement represents the hope of China."

"I can only trust that its pages will not be soiled by small groups of irreconcilables who for a selfish purpose would defeat the Chinese people in their overwhelming desire for the right to live in peace and prosperity."

Gen. Chang Chih-Chung, government signer, promised on its behalf that the terms would be honored fully and said the Chinese people appropriately were calling Marshall "the widower of the birth of unity."

Gen. Chou En-Lai, Communist signer, also pledging 100 per cent fulfillment of the agreement, warned that difficulties might be met, but expressed confidence they could be vanquished.

Chou, too, highly praised Marshall, mentioning the truce of Jan. 10, the governmental unification agreement of Jan. 31, and Monday's Army consolidation pact—in all of which the American soldier-diplomat had a hand.

Mary Ellen Shaw Seeks Fever Cure At Johns Hopkins

Mary Ellen Shaw, 4, boarded a train yesterday for Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore where her parents hope an answer will be found for a strange "rhythmic fever" which has beset her since infancy.

The daughter of a Georgia assistant attorney general, she fell victim of recurrent fever at the age of three months.

She is well for ten days, then runs temperature ranging from 101 to 105 degrees for five or six days, then is normal again for ten days. The cycle has been repeated over and over again.

Specialists have checked Mary Ellen from head to toe. They haven't found the cause or the cure. She is growing weaker daily.

Miss Williams Will Wed Denman Hammond March 30

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Capt. Charles David Williams Jr., USNR, and Mrs. Williams, of Washington, and formerly of Atlanta, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Elizabeth Williams, to George Denman Hammond, of Atlanta, the wedding to take place in Washington on March 30.

The bride-elect's mother is the former Miss Catherine Marie Beck of Indianapolis, Ind., daughter of Mrs. Henry A. Beck and the late Mr. Beck. Her paternal grandparents are the late Bishop Charles David Williams, of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Williams, the former Miss Lucy Benedict, of Marietta, Ga. She is the sister of Mrs. James E. Clark, of Seattle; Miss Cynthia Ann Williams, and Charles David Williams III.

Miss Williams attended school in Honolulu, T. H., Seattle, Wash., and graduated from Washington State University in Seattle. She studied at Yale University, at the University of Mexico in Mexico City, and at the George Washington University in Washington, from which she was graduated last June, receiving the award for highest honors in her major field, psychology. A member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, she was active in campus and civic affairs. Since her graduation she has been engaged in personnel work in Washington, pursued a graduate course in personnel administration, and served as delegate to the City Panhellenic Council.

Mr. Hammond is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Percy Waters Hammond, of Atlanta. His father was a prominent figure in newspaper circles, who was for many years connected with The Atlanta Constitution which he served as managing editor. His mother was the former Miss Elizabeth Spurr Denman, daughter of Mrs. George B. Denman and the late Mr. Denman, of Atlanta. His paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Hammond, of Ardmore,

MISS FLORENCE E. WILLIAMS

Pa. His sister is Lt. Elizabeth Penn Hammond, and his brother, Lt. Thomas Taylor Hammond.

SALLY FORTH Says: Ed, Grace Hammond Take To Country Life--and Love It!

Grace and Ed Hammond and their children, Anne Powell, who is six, and Ed Jr., aged four, who have arrived to spend a month with Grace's parents, Judge and Mrs. Arthur Powell, on Peachtree street, have forsaken the bright lights and sophisticated social whirl of the nation's capital for the quiet, simple life of a small town. And they are enamored with it!

Some three years ago, Ed fell heir to his ancestral home in Berlin, Md., which has been in the Hammond family for four generations. Due to the stress of wartime, he and Grace remained in Washington (Ed was a prominent barrister there) until last September when they officially moved into their charming country home, located on a 45-acre tract eight miles from Ocean City, Md. The house, which is built of brick, stuccoed, is over 150 years old, and consists of three floors, each complete with antique mahogany furniture. During Ed's father's lifetime, the house was equipped with all of the modern conveniences, but there still remain remnants of days gone by, such as the ashhouse, where the ashes from the fireplaces and stoves were kept; the onionhouse, smokehouse, carriage house, barn, corn crib, and stables. And, what's more, the Hammonds are the proud possessors of a "surly with a fringed top."

Ed's mother, it seems, was quite a horticulturist. She planted lanes of crepe myrtles, and practically every known variety of flowering shrub. There are boxwoods and beds of fragrant valley lilies, roses and camellias—one camellia bush being a century and a half old. Grace and Ed have their cow boarded out, at present, but there are eight fat pigs in their pen. Ed's sister, Virginia (Mrs. William) Whaley, who with her husband (the mayor of the town) and son, Billy, reside next door, have two saddle horses which are borrowed on occasion by the Hammonds.

As evidence that Grace and Ed are really taking their country roles seriously, they explain that the reason for their visit this time of the year is that they had to come between planting seasons. They must get home in time to plant the garden seed and the corn. According to Grace, who is as enthusiastic as can be over farming, the tomatoes which come from their garden are the most delicious to be found anywhere. Ed expects to continue his law practice in Berlin.

The Hammonds' visits always inspire many delightful social affairs, which are already well under way.

TO ATHENS VIA STATION WAGON

It was a gay and festive eighth-graders from Washington Seminary who set out Friday afternoon for Athens to witness the basketball game between their varsity team and that of Athens High School. Charlie Nunnally, the father of one of the group, Catherine Nunnally, offered to take the girls over to Athens in his station wagon, so they prepared a basket luncheon and stopped en route for a picnic supper. You see, they did not leave Atlanta until 5 o'clock, so they wouldn't have had time to get dinner in Athens before the game. Anyway, it was much nicer to have a picnic!

In addition to Catherine Nunnally, the girls included Mary Lee McGinnis, Margaret Whitner, Annalee Tharpe, Rowena Rice, Betty Walker, Joan Cowart, Lamar Ellis, Janet Snelling and Carolyn Mann.

"SHUBERT ALLEY" PRESENTED

The auditorium of Washington Seminary rang with applause last evening when the Dramatic Club and Play Productions class presented the first performance of "Shubert Alley," by Mel Dinelli. The play was directed by Miss Ruth Draper, assisted by Miss Jane Mulkey. Last evening the cast was just about perfect, and everyone is looking forward to the performance this evening, when the cast will be completely different. Of course interest has been keen because of the competition between the two casts.

The girls taking the leading roles in the play this evening include Don Daniels, Jean Mouchet, Jinx Poindecker, Beulah Reeve, Renee Reinhard, Margaret Lakin, Jo Lynn Scott, Joyce Thomas, Edith Sewell, Ruth Wilson, Nancy Gaines, Nancy Candler, Betty Jean Center, Rebecca Cowan, Marie Bryson, Barbara Watkins, Pat Dunn, Nancy Giblin and Elizabeth Squire.

The first-nighters were Nancy Hall, Joanne Lang, Nancy Giblin, Nancy Keen, Butterworth, Bess Lundeen, Mary Charles Fitzpatrick, Nancy Gowen, Jo Lynn Scott, Edith Sewell, Ruth Wilson, Jean Barnhardt, Mary Thomason, Nancy Candler, Betty Jean Center, Lulu Camp, Winnifred Shackelford, Phyllis Namore and Jinx Poindecker.

Miss Burgess Weds Ens. Knox At First Presbyterian Church

In a wedding gown fashioned of creamy-white lace and net, Miss Laura O'Donnell Burgess, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Taylor Burgess, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Ens. John Somerville Knox Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Knox Sr. The marriage, which was attended only by members of the immediate families and close friends of the couple, took place at 4:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church, which was artistically decorated with palms, seven-branched candelabra, white chrysanthemums, white gladioli and madonna lilies. Dr. William V. Gardner, pastor of the church, officiated and Dr. Charles Sheldon was organist.

Foy Hood was best man for Ens. Knox and the usher-grooms, men included Trenton Tunnell Jr., John Taulman, Billy Williamson, Keith Quarterman and Cleveland Wilcoxson.

Miss Barbara Burgess, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore an original creation of pale pink tulle, designed with off-the-shoulder neckline and puffed sleeves and double bustle. She wore a matching bandeau with pink camellias in her hair, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of shell pink camellias and blue delphinium, tied with iris blue satin ribbon.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her Dresden beauty was accentuated by her gown, made with overshirt of white satin and court train. Her filmy tulle veil was attached to a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and swainsons.

An informal reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on Peachtree street, with only the families, wedding party and out-of-town guests present. Miss Ellen Quarterman kept the bride's book, and Mesdames Fitzhugh Knox Sr., Paul Goldsmith Sr., John A. Burgess, Cleveland Wilcoxson and Keith Quarterman assisted.

Ens. and Mrs. Knox left on their wedding journey to New York, at the conclusion of which they will reside in Brunswick, Me., where the groom is stationed. For traveling, Mrs. Knox wore a smart gray frock, gray Persian lamb coat, gray felt hat, trimmed in a deeper shade of gray, and a cluster of white orchids.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. DeSales Harrison, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Clarkson, of Charlotte, N. C.; and Lt. Jack Burgess, of Washington, D. C.

Bishop's Chapel Forms Setting For Ransom-Louis Marriage

The altar vases in Bishop John Moore Walker's chapel were artistically arranged with white carnations and snapdragons yesterday afternoon when Bishop Walker performed the marriage ceremony for Miss Tina Scott Ransom, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mayson Ransom, and Lt. William Charles Louis Jr. The marriage of this prominent couple was witnessed by only the members of their immediate families. The music was presented by Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, harpist.

William C. Louis served as his son's best man, and Miss Margaret Louis, the groom's sister, served as the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Miss Louis wore a beige crepe dress made with cap sleeves and trimmed in gold. Her accessories were black, and she wore a cluster of pink camellias.

The beautiful blonde bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Eugene M. Ransom, wore a becoming afternoon frock of aqua crepe which featured a V-neckline, short sleeves and aqua heading on the belt. She wore a brown hat and brown accessories and she carried a shower bouquet of bronze spray orchids.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ransom entertained at a small reception at the Piedmont Driving Club in honor of their daughter and Lt. Louis. The club was decorated with arrangements of white roses, snapdragons and swainsons. White gladioli and snapdragons graced the mantel. The tiered wedding cake, embossed in white orchids and lilies of the valley, was surrounded with graceful fern. Miss Eloise Ellis kept the bride's book.

The bridal couple left for Fort Lewis, Washington, where Lt. Louis will be stationed with the U. S. Army.

The guests who arrived from a distance to attend the wedding include Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lumpkin, Frank Lumpkin Jr., Mrs. Robert Ransom, the bride's grandmother, and Robert Patterson, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Frank MacPherson, Montgomery, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Pratt, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Earl McGowan, of Chapman, Ala.; and Frank Mosely, of Union Springs, Ala.

Arena Is Victor; Finals Tonight

By SON MAXWELL

The Southeastern AAU basketball tournament, affording some of the most brilliant cage action seen here in years, will come to a close here today and tonight with the semi-finals game in the men's division between the Fort Benning Snipers, the Georgia State champions, and the rejuvenated Sports Arena team at 3 p. m., appearing as the most spirited struggle in sight.

The Arena quintet yesterday thrashed the Mobile, Ala., Knights of Columbus, 77 to 57, with Frank Broyles firing in 33 points, Ralph Hamilton, 24, and Ed Copeland, 12. The Snipers, unbeaten this year except by the Ft. Wayne Zollners, national pro champions for two years, drubbed Maxwell Field, 67 to 40 yesterday.

The other semifinal game in the men's division will pit the Memphis NATTC Hellcats, coached by "Swede" Phillips, of Atlanta Tech High, against the Parris Island Marines at 4 p. m. Men's finals will be played at 9:30.

The Hellcats led the Atlanta Naval Air Squadron all the way, but had a hard time winning, 43 to 34. Parris Island came through with a hard-earned 54-47 triumph over Saufley Field of Pensacola.

The strong Sports Arena Blues will be battling the Cooks Goldblumes, defending champions and No. 1 seeded team from Nashville, in the finals of the girls' division at 8:30 p. m. today. The Blues drubbed Tennessee Eastman easily, 41-17, yesterday, and the Champs made a shambles of the Lorelei Ladies, of Atlanta, 29 to 19.

The women's consolation finals will be played at 6:30, and the two losers in the men's semifinals will battle it out at 7:30 for third place in their division.

Bill Tilden, dean of pro tennis, easily defeated Lloyd Budge, Miami Beach, 6-4, 6-2. Frank Kovacs, Oakland, 6-4, 6-2, downed Vincent Richards, White Plains, N. Y., 6-3, 6-4, and Fred Perry, English net champion, defeated Martin Buxby, Miami, 6-3, 6-2.

Bob Fenimore Found 'Fit'

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Major W. H. Wandell, commanding the Oklahoma City Indian Center, said Monday All-American Football Star Bob Fenimore, of Oklahoma A. & M. College, had been found physically fit for induction.

The major made the announcement after receiving a report from Borden General hospital, which last week gave Fenimore a complete examination to determine if his leg injury would keep him from the armed forces.

Twice the injury has resulted in 4-F classification for the 20-year-old backfield star who sparked his team to victories in the Cotton Bowl of 1945 and the Sugar Bowl of 1946. Fenimore has one more year of eligibility.

Oklahoma A. & M. will play Georgia in Athens on Oct. 19.

College Park Plays Jonesboro for Title

College Park and Jonesboro will meet in a playoff for the Suburban League basketball championship at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the College Park auditorium. Hapeville and Joe Jenkins' Georgia Power five will play a preliminary one hour earlier.

The four participants also will play in the annual College Park double elimination tournament for boys and girls which will start Saturday. The Marietta Lions, Naval Air Station and Fayetteville, phoned in their entries yesterday. Gordon Morris announced last night. Deadline for entry is Thursday, and entries may be made by calling Morris at the College Park golf course.

Girls' Meet Will Open Tonight

By RUSSELL MUSGRAVE

The fifth district girls' tournament with 16 teams entered gets under way tonight at 6 o'clock at the Decatur auditorium when Hapeville lassies face Stone Mountain in the first of a four-game slate. Covington and Campbell follow at 7 o'clock; Southwest DeKalb meets Clarkston at 8 with Decatur winding up the night's activities against Sacred Hearts.

Wednesday's four-game program completes the first round of play with Fulton battling Porterdale at 6 o'clock, Lithonia tackling Conyers at 7, Tucker squaring off against Avondale at 8, and Druid Hills playing College Park at 9.

The four-game quarter-finals start at 6 o'clock Thursday with Friday's semi-finals beginning at 7:30 p. m. Saturday's 8:30 p. m. finals will be preceded by a 7:30 third-place bout between the semifinal losers.

Fans will see in action at 9 o'clock tonight when Decatur takes the floor against Sacred Hearts, the fastest hoop-shooter in the Atlanta area. Red-headed Virginia Baker, of Sacred Heart, fires a bullet-like shot at the basket that has little or no arch on it that generally finds its mark in spectacular fashion from any angle or spot on the floor.

Morgan Eyes Go With Bennicasa As Road to Title

A newcomer on the local grappling front and one whom Promoter Paul Jones believes will prove to be a great favorite with the fans is Big Ben Morgan from Beaumont, Texas.

Big Ben, who is scheduled for a bout with Ben Bennicasa Friday night at the city auditorium, tips the beams at 315 pounds, but looks many pounds heavier in his street clothes. He is six foot, four inches tall and has been in the game long enough to be classed as a veteran of the squared circle.

The Texan breezed into Atlanta last Friday night and immediately demanded a championship match with Longson. Promoter Jones liked the idea, but decided that Morgan had better show himself a few times here before getting involved in a title struggle. If the fans think he can go against the rugged champion, it is likely that Big Ben may be the next challenger here.

The main go struggle Friday will find cagey Vic Emanuel tangle with Herb Welch, the junior heavyweight titlist, in a non-title setto.

ALL IN THE GAME JACK TROY

Sherry Smith

Monday morning wash, or letting one of the customers do part of the work. . . .

By BILLIE BRAD MORGAN.
On Feb. 19, 1931, there was born near Mansfield, Ga., one of the great left-handed twirlers of baseball—Sherry (Sherry) Malone Smith. Many old-time fans are familiar with the record of the big blond Georgian, who twice hurled the Brooklyn Dodgers to National League pennants, and who shares with Babe Ruth the record of pitching the longest World Series game on record, the 14-inning, never-to-be-forgotten game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Red Sox in 1916.

Sherry lost that one, though many baseball men have long argued that he outpitched the Babe that day. Well, one thing is sure, no one has ever pitched 14 innings of better ball in any World Series.

All through his big league career, eight years with Brooklyn and six years with the Cleveland Indians, Sherry was known as the king of snapping runners off first base. Only one man, Fred Haney, of Detroit, ever stole a base on the Mansfield twirler. Once in a spring exhibition game, a rookie was on first base; he was warned by his coach to stand on the bag and just pat it. And said rookie was doing just that, but once he jerked his foot off the bag to slap at a mosquito and in a flash old Sherry had the ball in the first baseman's mitt and the rookie was soon on his way to the dugout.

After that miraculous play ball players often referred to Sherry as the pitcher that nips them off base "between pats." The game will not likely ever see another as uncanny at snapping baseball runners as was Sherry. And only once in his long career did an umpire call a balk on him.

Sherry is now chief of police at Madison, just 20 miles from his native town of Mansfield.

Along with the writer, thousands of fans will wish him many, many more happy birthdays.

Amazing Scorer The other day reference was made to the fact that Ralph Hamilton, the leading scorer of the nation a year ago, has scored more than 1,000 points in all types of rugged basketball competition this season. We now have learned that the individual record-holder of the National Professional Basketball League, Mel Riebe, now playing with the Great Lakes Sailors, has never scored more than 606 points in a season.

Atlanta basketball fans have come to the conclusion that Hamilton must have the finest scoring eye in basketball circles.

He really is, as far as we're concerned, the most consistent scorer who has ever played in Atlanta.

Much has been made of the fact that Riebe recently scored 25 points against the University of Detroit five.

Hamilton rarely falls below 15 points and has a record of 60 points for a game this year. He rang the bucket for almost 40 points against the world's professional champions, the Fort Wayne Zollners.

Hamilton's terrific scoring in the tournament at Sports Arena has established him as a point-a-minute man for the season. He is a member of the Sports Arena team. Through much of the season he has played with ASF officers, of Conley, now disbanded.

Hamilton soon will return to Indiana University, where he has another year. He's a cinch to lead the Big Ten in scoring.

Sports in Short MAX ROSNER, approaching 70, is looking forward to another great season with his world-famed Bushwicks, of Queens. . . . Among the players started out by the kindly little man, who says that baseball has kept him young, were JOE JUDGE, of Washington; LOU GEHRIG, of the Yankees, and one-armed PETE GRAY, who currently is a holdout from Toledo. Gehrig first played with the Bushwicks when he was going to Fordham in the college. . . . Judge came in first money from Rosner, who has departed for Warm Springs after visiting relatives in Atlanta. . . . He will visit the Giants in spring training at Miami before returning to Queens, New York.

Give a man a horse he can ride, says JOHN SMITH, athletic director at the Ansley. . . . Smith bought a fine Texas saddle for his horse, but he made the mistake of failing to exercise the horse. . . . Now it takes GORDON DILL, ROY TIPPINS and several stable hands to hold the horse while a saddle, not to mention Smith, is put on his back. . . . Smith is a member of the mounted patrol of the Shrine, but henceforth he may be seen leading the horse in parades.

MRS. PAUL A. SULLIVAN has written KEITH CONLEY that Joe Dimaggio is the idol of American kids in the Panama Canal Zone who've never lived in this country. . . . Paul Richards was one of the first American players to appear in Balboa.

SPURGEON CHANDLER, born in Commerce, is the only Georgian listed on the roster of the New York Yankees. . . . Chandler is now 36 years of age.

Jackets Lose Jumper, Leave for SEC Meet

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Coach Dwight Keith's Georgia Tech basketball team, seeded fourth for the annual Southeastern Conference tournament which will get under way Thursday in the Louisville (Ky.) armory, will depart tonight for the tournament with Jimmy Jumper, sub guard who has been seeing considerable service, among the missing. Jumper has been drafted.

Keith said last night that Jumper would be replaced on the tournament squad by Billy Roberts who has been coming along fast in recent months.

ECHOLS HURT AGAIN
The Jacket mentor's gloom was made thicker by the fact Ramon (Mouse) Echols, bounding guard who came into his own in a great spurt of mid-season play, re-injured an ankle in the Florida game last week-end and will be unable to see extensive play in Louisville.

Forward Jim Ray, who was allowed to visit his folks instead of making the Florida trip since he is being transferred by the navy to Great Lakes immediately following the tournament, will be available for the meet.

Keith plans to start Jim Nolan, center; Johnny Doyle and Ray, forwards; and Bobby Davis and Paul Hinkle, guards, against Georgia at 1:30 p. m. Thursday in the tourney opener. The elongated Nolan paced all SEC scorers with 291 points this year, and Ray and Doyle were next among the Tech-men with 152 each.

Team Capt. Bob Davis played great ball against Florida and rounded into the form that had been expected of him, Keith advises. Hank Klosterman, six-foot four-inch, 200-pound sub, shot 12 points in the Tech victory and should be a standout next year according to Dwight. He and George Mathews also will see much service in Louisville.

GODWIN PLAYS WELL
The play of Godwin, who was a third or fourth-stringer at the start of the year, also has been highly pleasing in recent games. Keith believes his charges have given a very creditable account of themselves to date in light of the fact such powerhouses as Kentucky, Duke, Tennessee, Alabama and Tulane were played twice each. The Jackets broke exactly even in 20 games.

Doval Cards Rugged Grid Schedule For Boys High Eleven in 1946

By JACK TROY

Constitution Sports Editor
Boys High school will play one of the most attractive schedules of football games in Purple history in the 1946 season.

Coach Shorty Doval, who is a strict believer in taking teams to other sections to give boys visual education and put down sectionalism, has arranged a 10-game schedule that includes two New Orleans high schools, two Florida high schools and one in Alabama.

Jesuit High school, New Orleans, will be played in the Crescent City. Holy Cross, whom the Purples met last year in New Orleans, will visit Atlanta this year.

There are three open dates on the attractive schedule. Unusual is the fact that there will be two consecutive off weeks in November. There also will be an off Saturday in October.

The complete schedule follows:
Sept. 6—Commercial here.
Sept. 13—Holy Cross here.
Sept. 20—Gadsden High in Gadsden, Ala.
Oct. 4—Benedictine in Savannah.
Oct. 11—Jesuit in New Orleans.
Oct. 18—Jesuit in New Orleans.
Oct. 25—Robert E. Lee in Jacksonville.
Nov. 1—Tech High at Grant field.
(The next two Saturdays off.)
Nov. 22—Lanier, Macon here.
Dec. 6—Miami High in Miami.

Coach Doval revealed that all arrangements have been made to play the annual Tech High-Boys High games at Grant Field. Tech will handle tickets and Doval said it might be a good idea for supporters to make their requests now.

"In my many years at Boys High I have thought it well to arrange as many inter-sectional games as possible. Our teams have played in Phoenix, Ariz., Texas and most of the southern states. I feel sure it tends to give boys a better idea of other sections; in short, it helps to put down sectionalism. It also adds a lot to boys' education."

Doval didn't mention it, but the revenue also goes in a fund to support all other athletic activities in

Dick Jones Reported As New Tech Trainer

Dick Jones, one of Boys High's best athletes of the past, is reported to be the new athletic trainer at Georgia Tech, succeeding Sandy Sandlin.

For the past three years Jones has been a part-time football assistant of Shorty Doval at Boys High. During this time he has been trained by Doval in the art of training. Doval has taught him how to wrap ankles, massage kinks out of muscles and so forth.

Jones attended Boys High in 1932-33-34. He was a center and a 60-minute performer throughout his freshman season when Charlie Preston was injured before the season opened. He was All-GIAA in 1934.

Jones was named as one of three centers (with Preston and Hank Doyal) on Doval's all-time Boys High team.

He also played for Dickie Butler at Gordon in the 1935 season and he had a year of freshman football at the University of Georgia.

North Fulton, Decatur Clash in NGIC Opener

By JACK ROBERTS

The first round of play in the annual N. G. I. C. basketball tournament will get off to a flying start tonight at the Henry Grady hardwood with those two old rivals, North Fulton and Decatur, doing the honors.

The opening tipoff is slated for 7 p. m.

It was just the luck of the draw that caused these two strong clubs to be matched against each other in the first game of the tourney.

During the regular season's play the teams split a pair of games and tonight's tilt will probably prove to be more exciting than their previous hot contests.

The second game at 8 o'clock will be between Fulton and Commercial. Canton was originally scheduled to play, but the order had to be changed around to avoid a possible interference of other tournament play.

The third game at 9 o'clock will see the NGIC's leading scorer, Jack Ramage, lead the Russell quintet against an improved Marist five. Ramage, the tall Wildcat athlete who plays basketball even better than he does football, racked up 147 points during the regular season to outclass all of the NGIC's high-point men.

Tomorrow night's games will be a continuation of the first round play with three games on the card. Druid Hills will meet Hapeville at 7, Athens and Gainesville are booked at 8, while Canton will face West Fulton an hour later. College Park and Marietta both drew first round byes, but will be seen in action on Thursday night in the second-round games.

Tech Rifle Teams Win High Honors

The 1946 William Randolph Hearst ROTC rifle match trophy in the Fourth Service Command was won with a score of 900 out of a possible 1,000 by the first team of North Carolina State College, it was announced yesterday through headquarters in Atlanta.

Second place was taken with a score of 871 by the first team of Georgia Tech.

Close behind the first team was the second Georgia Tech team with a score of 848. All 21 teams entered in the postal match shot their assigned targets on home ranges and mailed them to Atlanta for judging and scoring.

Leewood J. Edge, of the North Carolina nimrods, took top honors among all competitors with a score of 186 out of a possible 200. Besides Edge, the team included B. L. Porter, R. A. Ashworth, W. G. Head Jr. and B. H. Cooke.

Georgia Tech's first team was composed of J. H. Watts, W. V. Smith, R. E. Parham, R. H. Flowers and N. H. Ethridge. The second aggregation from the Flats included C. P. Bahart, J. Madry, G. K. Armstrong, S. F. Williams and E. J. Minton.

Decatur Grid Eleven, NGIC Champions, Feted

The Decatur Elks didn't spare the fried chicken last night as they played host to the championship Decatur Bulldogs football squad of 1945 at the Emory dining hall. The boys and honored guests were filled to the brim with delicious food and then given special awards for their achievements during the past year.

Hands-Off Policy On College Men Asked of Pros

HAMILTON, N. Y., Feb. 25.—(P)—Baseball's high commissioner, A. B. Chandler, was asked today temporarily to prohibit professional ball clubs from signing college players prior to their graduation.

The request was made by Everett D. "Eppie" Barnes, of Colgate University, president of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches, who urged the ruling pending adoption of a permanent policy by agreement between organized baseball and colleges.

Barnes said his appeal was prompted by a protest from Jack Combs, Duke University coach, who complained about the recent signing of one of his players.

Exalted Ruler Oscar Mitchell, of the Decatur Elks, acted as toastmaster and introduced such well-known Decaturites as T. G. Loudermilk, Decatur principal; O. L. Amsler, school superintendent, and jovial Joe Pittard, guest speaker of the evening.

Pittard, Georgia Tech freshman, gave a well-informed speech on the merits of good environment as a direct influence on the quality of the high school football player.

H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, gave a few tips on how he coached the champion Bulldogs from the side lines. Trotti has long been recognized as one of the staunchest supporters of the school and of the entire Decatur community.

Louis Woodruff, former football great at Georgia, now turned football coach, made presentation of awards to his Bulldogs, winners of the NGIC title.

The 1945 lettermen are Jakes, Patton, Quinn, Smith, Carroll, Davis, Southard, Miller, Simonton, Water, Everett, Weinert, Boggs, Miller, Cavender, Goza, Quarles, Colquitt, Bal-four, White, Sanders, Olsen, Rawlin, and the two trainers, Allen and Greider.

Both played spotty golf during the first nine, although the weather was clear and the wind not too much of an obstacle, and Mangrum was two-up at the turn.

Mangrum had a par 36. During the final half, both settled down to steady stroking and Mangrum increased his lead by one stroke.

Going into the 18th, he was 3 up.

Decatur Mittmen Seek Third Win

The Decatur High boxing team, which has scored victories over Tech High and the Atlanta Boys' Club, will be after its third win of the campaign when it enters the Techwood-Clark Howell boxers at 7:30 tonight at the Decatur gymnasium.

Decatur is coached by Tom Ledbetter and Gene Johnson. Benny Johnson, former Atlanta professional boxer who is just back from 20 months overseas service, will be the referee.

MERCER STUDENTS TO 'DEMONSTRATE'

MACON, Feb. 25.—A meeting of some 400 Mercer students voted almost unanimously here today to call off their 11 o'clock class Tuesday and stage a mass demonstration in front of the building in which the school's board of trustees will be voting on the advisability of re-establishing subsidized football, and athletics in general, at the Macon institution this year.

Bobby Hooks, recently reported as resigning because school officials voted to resume intercollegiate football competition but without benefit of subsidization, spoke before the student body today and emphasized he was not there to provoke or aggravate the situation but to allow students to ask any questions they wished. The coach said he had not resigned, as yet, but is in the market for a job.

'CAMOUFLAGED INFLATION?'

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—(P)—Benjamin H. Namm, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, Monday charged the Office of Price Administration with perpetrating "camouflaged inflation" upon the American people.

The OPA's so-called price line limitation, Namm said, "permitted manufacturers who did not previously produce an article to manufacture it and to introduce price schedules far above those permitted to old established manufacturers of like articles."

City Must Plan For 1,250,000, Rotary Is Told

"Thirty years ago when I addressed this club, I warned that Atlanta would face the greatest and most critical traffic problem of any city in the country. Now, with what vision are the business leaders of this great community going to plan for the new and greater Atlanta which is already here?"

Thus Allen D. Albert, of Paris, Ill., past president of Rotary International, spoke to the Atlanta Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Ansley hotel.

"You must plan with foresight and vision for an Atlanta of at least 1,250,000 people with a diameter of at least 40 miles. The city must be thought of as a metropolitan area, not as a community furrowed with political boundaries."

"You must have a far-reaching plan for Atlanta's growth," Albert continued, "that it will not be an unhealthy, jungle-type growth, a growth which would not be worthy of your great destiny."

"You must make provisions in your growing plans for the finer enrichment of life which comes through appreciation of beauty," he said. "The Atlanta of tomorrow must be interpreted in terms of the finer things of life as well as financial stability of those who will become its citizens."

Albert also spoke of the great opportunity of the U. S. to lead the world to a greater way of life by offering financial aid and native genius to the stricken people of the world.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

A Brief Review of the 101st Annual Statement to its Policyholders

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries aggregated $192,672,219 in 1945. Of this total, $109,476,268 was paid to living policyholders. Payments to the beneficiaries of those who died, $83,195,951, were the largest in the Company's history. Payments to the beneficiaries of policyholders who died in the Service amounted to $8,361,400 in 1945, and $19,590,700 since Pearl Harbor.

Life Insurance in Force in this Company totaled $7,979,193,102 under 3,401,178 policies at the end of 1945, the largest amount in the history of the Company. The gain in insurance in force during the year, $334,489,672, was the greatest since 1930.

Sales of New Life Insurance in 1945 amounted to $564,180,100, an increase of $38,380,300 over 1944.

Assets, held for the protection of the Company's life insurance and annuity contracts, totaled $3,813,504,094 at the end of 1945, reflecting an increase of $242,765,154 during the year. The assets exceeded the Company's reserves and other liabilities by $231,013,622, which amount constitutes the Company's Surplus Funds held for general contingencies.

Holdings of United States Government Obligations amounted to $2,319,748,756 as of December 31, 1945. This is more than 60 per cent of the assets. The policy of investing in United States Government bonds aided the Government in World War II, helped to hold in check the forces of inflation, and provided the safest of investments for the Company's funds. The increase during 1945 was $380,643,935.

Holdings of All Other Bonds and of Stocks, preferred and guaranteed, aggregated $857,100,505 at the end of 1945. During the year the Company purchased $157,653,493 of such securities, but, largely because of a substantial volume of redemptions and maturities, the holdings decreased by a net amount of $62,484,613, as compared with the end of the previous year.

Holdings of First Mortgages on Real Estate amounted to $354,128,970 at the end of 1945. There were 34,211 of such mortgage loans. During the year the Company made 1,150 new loans of $7,500 or less.

Holdings of Real Estate at the end of 1945 aggregated $22,898,411. This amount compares with $35,976,144 at the end of the previous year.

Policy Loans at the end of the year amounted to $166,454,501 on 427,944 policies. The corresponding figures for the end of 1944 were $188,185,417 on 483,338 policies.

Reserves Against the Company's Contractual Obligations were further strengthened at the end of 1945. Almost three-fourths of these reserves were computed at 2 1/2 per cent or lower interest. The interest rate assumptions reflect the Company's program of taking positive steps to meet the realities of the low yields currently available from the highest quality of investments.

Dividends payable in 1946 amount to $38,895,341. The New York Life is a mutual company, and dividends are paid to policyholders only.

A More Complete Report, as of December 31, 1945, contains additional statistical and other information about the Company and will be sent upon request. A list of the bonds and preferred and guaranteed stocks owned by the Company is also available. China Refuses Concessions To Russia on Manchuria

CHUNGKING, Feb. 25.—(P)—China restated her sovereignty over Manchuria and in effect rejected new concessions to Russia Monday night.

Her position was coupled with a declaration by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that he hoped the Manchurian problem would be solved, because world peace depended on Chinese-Soviet co-operation.

This first official Chinese statement of Manchurian policy said simply that Chiang had instructed his headquarters in Manchuria to base negotiations with Russia on these three principles:

1. They must be in accord with Chinese law. 2. The Chinese-Soviet treaty of last Aug. 14 must be respected. 3. There must be no conflict with international treaties to which China is a signatory.

There have been many unofficial reports that the Russians—who still occupy Manchuria—have been demanding broad new concessions far beyond the treaty terms, which gave them Port Arthur as a naval base and provided for joint operation of some railways and joint use of Dairen as a free port.

The announcement apparently was made to show the public that Chiang's government has no intention of sacrificing Chinese sovereignty over the rich Manchurian territory which has been a contested prize ever since the Japanese surrender.

NEWS ABOUT GEORGIA

Compiled from Constitution State News Reports
By LEE ROGERS

The Rev. L. E. McKellar, retired Methodist minister and former professor of Latin and Greek at Wesleyan College, was elected president of the Council of Social Agencies in Macon Monday.

Dr. Mark Smith, Bibb county school superintendent, said in Macon Monday that 11 out of 13 southern states either have a sales tax or admit they need one to finance their education programs properly, and that Georgia is one of three southern states spending more than 50 per cent of its income for school purposes.

Georgia's cattle-raising industry is worth $53,000,000 annually to the state, the Associated Press reports. The National Farm Loan Association meets in Blackshear Tuesday. Four new businesses opened last week in Waycross: two auto sales companies, a turpentine farmers' co-operative, a brick company.

W. O. Harris reports from Douglas a $47,000 trade in real estate since January 1. The first postwar state recreation conference is scheduled for March 6, 7 and 8 in Augusta with Dr. Harrison McMains and Dr. Herman L. Turner, both of Atlanta, speaking.

Albany began using parking meters Monday. . . G. W. Turner, Sylvester and Douglas, has purchased a two-thirds interest in the Valdosta Livestock Company. . . J. H. Hamilton has taken his new post as city engineer for Griffin. . . J. W. Smith is chairman of the Albany Red Cross and has named Olin Fulmer as fund campaign chairman. . . The 20-year-old business partnership of the Smith-Deming Tire Company was dissolved in Valdosta Monday with the retirement of Steve Stanfill. John Deming will continue the business.

If you are thinking of going into the lion taming business, Trainer Billy Sells has some advice: "Don't ever trust the beasts." Sells is recovering from a chewing he took from "Old Prince," a 16-year-old lion who should recognize his trainer from eating meat by now. "There are periods in a lion's life when he changes and will try to make a meal of the nearest living thing. Don't trust 'em."

W. J. and W. W. Wall, brothers, returned from Army service, have opened a garage, welding and repair shop at Douglas. . . Sparta reports the Hancock county fair will be held this fall.

Stanley S. Reese, of Dublin, former referee in bankruptcy for the southern division of Georgia, has been promoted to the rank of commander in the Navy. . . J. I. Eubanks, of Milledgeville, and Miss Lavina Potts, Fannin, are in serious condition in a Milledgeville hospital as the result of a head-on collision between their auto and another Sunday night. . . Valdosta will have a new city park on a tract of land along what is known as Two-Mile Branch, donated by Wilburn H. McKee.

Tobacco plants produced near Moultrie will be shipped to Ontario for transplanting in an experiment to see if it will survive in the subarctic region. . . Hugh Shackelford, Albany attorney, is reaping good dividends from his hobby—camellia growing. His flowers won nine prizes, including the sweepstakes, at Columbus.

Alderman Mitchell R. Young reports private interests are spending $350,000 and the township $36,000 in new construction projects at Savannah Beach. . . Construction of the Rockmart-Cartersville road will begin within the month, it was reported. . . Miss Edith Maddox, Griffin, has been named the most attractive girl at Spalding High and at Griffin High Miss Virginia Price and Kenneth Hunt are the best all-around. . . The Gwinnett county post of Veterans of Foreign Wars has been installed at Lawrenceville with Roy M. Gunter as commander.

Livestock slaughter in the south showed a big decline during January due to the meat workers' strike, Grady Adams reports from Moultrie and Thomasville. . . Vienna will hold a big celebration "Blue Lupine Day," on March 8. . . R. A. Thorpe, registrar of Emory at Oxford, has been named president of the Association of Georgia Junior Colleges. . . Valdosta's hot fight over city ownership of the electric plant flared again in city council Monday when unidentified outside interests sought the electric franchise. . . Southern Airways is planning a cross-Georgia route to serve Macon, Statesboro, Dublin and Columbus. . . Tribute was paid Judge A. B. Lovett Monday in memorial services held by the Savannah Bar Association at the opening of the February term of U. S. district court. . . Judge Frank M. Scarlett opened his first term of court.

Lamar Tigner, editor of the Irwinton Bulletin, died at the age of 66 at his home Sunday night. Funeral services will be at 4 p. m. Tuesday in Irwinton.

Methodist Council Names Group To Probe Holy See

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Council of Methodist Bishops at the concluding session of its annual meeting Monday named a committee to study "the question of Protestantism as it relates to the Roman Catholic church in matters that concern Methodism."

A council spokesman said that "among matters to be considered is that of diplomatic representation at the Vatican on the part of the United States."

Another committee was named to prepare a statement on the essential theological position of Methodism. The announcement will insist upon the Protestant ideal of the right of private judgment," the spokesman said. "We look with grave concern on totalitarian forms whether political, economic or ecclesiastical."
